I. General Statement

In May, 1971, the School of Law completed its forty-sixth academic year. At that time degrees were conferred or certificates were granted to those who had completed the requirements for same in August 1970, December 1970, and May 1971. The following tabular analysis reflects comparative data, with respect to degrees conferred or certificates granted during the period 1964-1971:

Appendix A contains detailed information regarding the 1971 recipients of degrees or certificates, honors and awards, and student activities and organizations for the year 1970-1971.

The year was one of financial crisis for the University. Every activity had to be reexamined and reevaluated to determine its need and its cost in relation to the total budget. The various schools, divisions, and departments of the University were asked to effect economies and cut-backs in all expenditure. The Law School complied with this request and set expenditure targets below those originally approved in order to produce a surplus in operations.

All of this was done while at the same time the School offered a well rounded curriculum and program of activities for the students. The revenue with which the School operates consists of tuition, gifts, and a small income from endowment. Tuition can no longer be increased annually if the School is to compete for students from a broad spectrum of society. Additional gift and endowment income are, of course, constantly being sought. The hard fact is, however, that we must use to maximum efficiency the resources that we now have; more especially we must use the resourcefulness of faculty and students to find ways of improving the quality of professional education without increasing its cost.

Two of the principal events of the year consisted of the establishment of the William Hawley Atwell Chair in Constitutional Law and the formal dedication of the Underwood Law Library. These events are reported under Section VI and VII below.

II. Faculty

Appendix B sets out in detail faculty bibliographies and activities for the year 1970-1971. Changes in assignments, leaves, and part-time faculty for the period under review were as follows:

Assistant Professor Robert W. Bogomolny joined the faculty on September 1, 1970. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Juris Doctor from Harvard University. He was formerly on the staff of the Vera Foundation of New York City. During the year he taught Crimes and Criminal Procedure and in addition supervised a criminal justice internship grant under the auspices of the Council on Legal Education for Professional Responsibility and the North Texas Council of Governments.

Professor Alan R. Bromberg was on leave during the year engaged in independent research in the field of securities regulation.

Visiting Associate Professor Richard B. Buckley from Syracuse University was in residence during the summer session of 1970. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts from Denison University and Juris Doctor from Syracuse University. He serves as Director of Research, Joint Legislative Committee on Insurance, State of New York. He taught Insurance.

Assistant Professor Beverly W. Carl joined the faculty on September 1, 1970. She holds the degrees of Bachelor of Science in Law and Juris Doctor from the University of Southern California and Master of Laws from Yale University. She was formerly associated with the Agency for International Development. During the year she taught Comparative Private International Law, International Law, American Constitution, Conflict of Laws, and Common Market Law.

Visiting Professor Thomas W. Christopher, formerly Dean of the School of Law of the University of New Mexico and now Dean of the School of Law, University of Alabama, was in residence during the summer session of 1970. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Laws from the University of Alabama and Master of Laws and Doctor of the Science of Law from New York University. He taught Regulation of Business.

Associate Professor James R. Craig resigned from the faculty at the end of the academic year to go into private business.

Professor Harvey L. Davis was on leave during the year working on model consumer protection legislation.

Professor William J. Flittie was granted sabbatical leave for the year to do research and writing in the field of legal means of control of traffic in dangerous drugs.

Visiting Professor John E. Kennedy was in residence during the regular session of the academic year from the University of Kentucky. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Philosophy and Juris Doctor from the University of Notre Dame, and Master of Laws from Yale University. During the year he taught Procedure I and II, Federal Courts, Government Contracts, and Equitable Remedies.

Visiting Associate Professor Joe Scott Morris was in residence during the academic year from the University of Florida. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts from Rice University, Juris Doctor from Southern Methodist University, and Master of Laws from Harvard University. During the year he taught Business Taxation, Corporate Planning I and II, Environmental Law, Estate Planning, and Real Estate Planning. He has joined the faculty and was given tenure as Associate Professor of Law by the Board of Trustees at its May meeting.

Visiting Associate Professor Robert A. Riegert left the University at the end of the academic year to accept an appointment as Professor of Law at Cumberland School of Law of Samford University, Birmingham, Alabama.

Visiting Associate Professor Walter W. Steele, Jr. was given tenure as Associate Professor of Law by the Board of Trustees at its May meeting. During the year he taught Crimes I, Legal Clinic A and B, Law and Psychiatry, Criminal Procedure I, Advanced Criminal Law, and Problems of Urban Society.

Assistant Professor Rod W. Surratt joined the faculty on September 1, 1970. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts from Baylor University and Juris Doctor from the University of Texas at Austin. He was on the Board of Editors of the Texas Law Review and served as law clerk to Judge Irving Goldberg.
of the United States Court of Appeals for the Fifth Circuit. During the year he taught Torts I and II, Evidence, and Federal Appellate Practice.

Professor Howard J. Taubenfeld was on sabbatical leave during the fall semester 1970. He was working on a grant from Resources for the Future on continuing research on international aspects of weather modification.

Associate Professor William Van Der Creek resigned from the faculty during the year to accept an appointment to the faculty of the School of Law of Florida State University.

Visiting Professor Walter J. Waddington, III, from the University of Virginia, was in residence during the summer session of 1970. He holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts from Duke University and Bachelor of Laws from Tulane University. He taught Family Law.

Mrs. Maxine T. McConnell joined the Law School staff on September 1, 1970, as Director of the Legal Clinic. She holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts and Juris Doctor from Southern Methodist University. She was formerly chief counsel of the Dallas Legal Services Project.

Mr. Max K. Jones, Assistant Dean and Assistant Director of Law School Development, and Mr. David W. Purcell, Associate Dean and Executive Director of Continuing Legal Education and Law School Development resigned during the year.

The following part-time lecturers taught seminars or courses during this period:

Adjunct Professor Henry D. Akin, course in Workmen's Compensation; Edward A. Copley, Jr., Esq., together with Herbert S. Kendrick, Esq., course in Tax Procedure and Litigation; Thomas L. Crisman, Esq., course in Intellectual Property Seminar; William L. Garrett, Seminar in Ethics and Law; Adjunct Professor Robert S. Vogelson, Esq., Anti-Trust Seminar; The Honorable Elmore Whitehurst, course in Bankruptcy; Helmut O. Wolff, seminar in Non-Labor Arbitration.

Five student instructors in Legal Writing were employed to work under the direction of Professor Wingo in the first-year program of legal writing and research. These student instructors were Ira D. Einsohn, Bachelor of Arts, Washington University in St. Louis; David A. Ives, Bachelor of Arts, Kansas State College; Mark C. Mueller, Bachelor of Arts and Master of Business Administration, Southern Methodist University; C. Richard White, Bachelor of Arts, Southern Methodist University; and Margaret M. Williams, Bachelor of Arts, Emmanuel College. All of these student instructors received their Juris Doctor degrees in May.

III. Degree Programs

The School of Law conducted the following major programs during the year 1970-1971:

(A) The three-year Juris Doctor program, requiring 90 hours of required and elective courses.

(B) The general graduate program for part-time and full-time students leading to the degree of Master of Laws. The requirements are 24 hours of seminar and course work prescribed by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies. A dissertation may be submitted for as many as 12 hours of credit.

(C) The graduate program in international and comparative law leading to the degree of Master of Comparative Law. The requirements are 24 hours of seminar and course work prescribed by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies. A Certificate in Comparative Law may in the discretion of the faculty be awarded to those students in the international and comparative law program who fail in some particular respect to meet all the grade and hour requirements for the Master of Comparative Law degree.

(D) The graduate program in research and writing leading to the degree of Doctor of Science of Law. The requirements are prescribed for the candidate by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies.

IV. Curriculum

The Curriculum in effect for the summer session 1970 consisted of 12 sections of courses and seminars; during the regular session 141 sections of courses and seminars were offered. Under the program for the Juris Doctor degree, the student had to complete forty-six hours of required courses and forty-four hours of electives, at least one course involving international and comparative law or jurisprudence, a planning course, and a seminar in which a substantial paper is required.

During the year new offerings included Criminal Law Internship, offered by Professor Robert L. Bogomolny; Intellectual Property Seminar, offered by Thomas L. Crisman, Esq.; Personal Injury Litigation Seminar, offered by David M. Kendall, Jr., Esq.; Product Liability and Regulation, offered by Professor Robert A. Bernstein; Contemporary Tax Problems, offered by Stanley C. Simon, Esq.; Environmental Law and Real Estate Planning, offered by Professor J. Scott Morris.

The tuition during the regular session was $1,800 for the two semesters.

During the year we continued, as in prior years, an intensive program of recruiting in colleges and universities throughout the country. This has resulted in an increasing number of well-qualified applicants. Visits were made to thirty-seven colleges and universities in the following states: Arkansas, Georgia, Kansas, Louisiana, Minnesota, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, and Wisconsin.

VI. The William Hawley Atwell Chair in Constitutional Law

At an appreciation dinner held on November 24, 1970, Southern Methodist University announced the endowment of the William Hawley Atwell Chair of Constitutional Law. Endowed by a gift of $600,000 from Dallas attorney Webster Atwell and his wife, Laura Burgher Atwell, the chair is in memory of Mr. Atwell’s father, who served for thirty-two years as United States District Judge for the Northern District of Texas. Mr. Atwell stated at the dinner that he had chosen to endow a chair in Constitutional Law because his father considered the Constitution to be “the greatest document penned by man.”

Professor A. J. Thomas, Jr., a member of the Law School faculty since 1947, was named by the Southern Methodist University Board of Trustees as the first person to occupy the Chair. Having received his Bachelor of Science degree from A&M College of Texas, Professor Thomas went to the University of Texas for his Bachelor of Laws degree. He also holds a Master of Laws and a Doctor of the Science of Law degrees from the University of Michigan. Prior to joining the faculty of the Law School, Professor Thomas was a member of the United States Foreign Service, in which he served as vice consul in Costa Rica, Portugal, and the Netherlands. Professor Thomas has co-authored a number of books and articles with his wife, Ann Van Wynen Thomas. Their most recent joint publication is entitled Legal Limits on Chemical and Biological Warfare, which developed out of a contract which they had with the United States Arms Control and Disarmament Agency to do a study of indirect aggression and subversion.

VII. Dedication of the Underwood Law Library

On Thursday and Friday, April 29 and 30, a distinguished gathering of lawyers, judges, law teachers, faculty, students, and friends of the University participated in a two-day program of dedication of the Underwood Law Library.

At noon on Thursday, the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of Texas, together with the participants in the Symposium on Judicial Reform, and senior law students had lunch together in the Grand Ballroom of the Umphrey Lee Student Center.

The afternoon Symposium on Judicial Reform from 2:00 to 4:00 p.m. consisted of a panel presided over by Morris Harrell, Esq., President of the State Bar of Texas. The panel participants were Chief Justice Robert W. Calvert of the Supreme Court of Texas, Chief Justice William A. Berry of the Supreme Court of Oklahoma, Chief Justice Carleton Harris of the Supreme Court of Arkansas, Chief Justice Fred L. Henley of the Supreme Court of Missouri, Associate Justice and former Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Arizona, Lorna E. Lockwood, Chief Justice Edward E. Pringle of the Supreme Court of Colorado, and Associate Justice Paul Tackett of the Supreme Court of New Mexico.

In the evening all the visitors were honored with a reception and buffet at the Fairmont Hotel.

On Friday morning, the Law School Faculty, Law School Committee of the Board of Trustees, and Law School Board of Visitors met for breakfast in the Junior Ballroom of the Umphrey Lee Student Center.

The morning Symposium on the Status of the American University in Contemporary Society from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. consisted of a panel presided over by Dr. Bryce Jordan, then President ad interim, the University of Texas at Austin and President designate, the University of Texas at Dallas. The panel participants were Dr. Willis M. Tate, President, Southern Methodist University; Dr. Norman Hackerman, President, Rice University; Dr. Martha Peterson, President Barnard College; Dr.
A. Kenneth Pye, Chancellor, Duke University.

Following a buffet luncheon in the Law School Quadrangle, the formal academic procession proceeded from Lawyers Inn to McFarlin Memorial Auditorium for the ceremony of dedication and the Law Day, USA, Address by the Attorney General of the United States, the Honorable John N. Mitchell.

Guided tours of the library followed the ceremony of dedication, and in the evening at the Statler Hilton Hotel a reception, dinner, and sons et lumiere show honored the donors.

The new library building is of Georgian style, harmonizing with the other buildings of the University. The library collections of 174,000 volumes include all the statutes and decisions of the Federal and state governments, collections of international and comparative law materials from Latin America, the Middle East, Far East, Europe, the United Kingdom, and British Commonwealth countries. Loose-leaf services, digests, texts, encyclopedias, periodicals, Congressional materials, briefs filed before the courts, and miscellaneous legal and governmental reference materials offer the researcher an abundance of sources for intensive study of any topic. The collection has grown from a modest inventory of a few thousand books in 1926 to 174,000 in 1971. The growth has been steadily and systematically planned. With a gross area of 100,000 square feet, the building can accommodate 450,000 volumes. Almost 600 volumes of rare books of the 16th, 17th, and 18th centuries have been acquired from special gifts. New technology has been added to the traditional components of legal research. Lectures on cassettes and video tapes, microfilm records of numerous primary research materials will aid students, lawyers, and judges in the future. The selection of books and the administration of the library has been ably directed by Professor Arthur L. Harding, Chairman of the Law School’s Committee on Library, and Miss Hibernia Turbeville, Law Librarian, and her staff who give constant devotion and service to the needs of students and lawyers. During the year $190,000 was expended on library operation.

VIII. Alumni Relations, Law School Fund, Student Aid

James A. Williams, Esq., President, and E. Ray Hutchison, Esq., and Rodney D. Moore, Esq., Vice Presidents, of the Law Alumni Association, headed the annual Law School Fund drive for the year. In an effort to maintain a closer contact with our alumni outside of Dallas, five informal alumni meetings were held in three major Texas cities: Fort Worth (November 28, 1970 and June 17, 1971); Houston (December 1, 1970 and April 22, 1971); Lubbock (October 24, 1970). These meetings proved to be especially effective in providing an interchange of views between this School and its alumni.

A detailed report of the Law School Fund for 1970-1971 is incorporated in a special issue of The Brief of the School of Law, mailed to alumni and friends in the fall of 1971. Total gifts and scholarships from alumni and non-alumni totaled $129,566.57. These contributions have been used for financial assistance to students in various ways: loans, tuition grants, research assistants, expenses of moot court, law journals, Student Bar Association, and the like. Alumni gifts totaled $46,430.20 with 20 per cent of alumni participating. The average alumni gift was $86.14. These figures compare with alumni gifts of $63,418.30 and 33 per cent of alumni participating with an average gift of $78.54 during the year 1969-1970. Non-alumni gifts totaled $83,136.37 compared with gifts of $54,127.38 last year. The faculty of the School of Law also contributed generously to the Fund.

Other events relating to alumni relations were as follows:

On November 4, 1970, those contributing named scholarships and amounts of $100 or more for the 1969-1970 Law School Fund were honored at a Century Club dinner at the Student Center. On November 21, 1970, an alumni breakfast in Lawyers Inn was well attended by faculty, students and alumni alike. The breakfast was held as a part of Homecoming activities and guided tours of Underwood Law Library were conducted. On July 1, 1971, an alumni breakfast at the Baker Hotel in conjunction with the State Bar Convention marked the close of the 1970-1971 Law School Fund drive.

IX. Publications

The Southwestern Law Journal published again this past year the Annual Survey of Texas Law, which was well received. The Journal of Air Law and Commerce sponsored a Symposium on General Aviation in the Seventies which was held March 17-19, 1971. This program exemplified the same high standards of the previous years' similar conferences. Professors Wingo and Taubenfeld were faculty advisers to the Southwestern Law Journal and Journal of Air Law and Commerce, respectively. During Professor Taubenfeld's absence in the fall semester, Professor Bernstein acted as adviser to the Journal of Air Law and Commerce.

Other publications during the year included The Brief of the School of Law and the Law School Yearbook.

X. Legal Clinic

Under the supervision of Mrs. Maxine T. McConnell, Director, and Professor Walter W. Steele, Jr., Faculty Supervisor, the Legal Clinic curriculum has been expanded to provide greater opportunities for students to develop practical skills and an understanding of professional responsibility.

The course is divided into two semesters for a total credit of three hours. Legal Clinic A, the one-hour first semester course, introduces the student to the clinic with instruction on how to draft and file pleadings and other instruments, how to conduct a professional interview, and how to practice at the courthouse. In Legal Clinic B, the two-hour second semester course, classroom lectures on techniques of practice in specific areas of the law are given by practicing lawyers and judges. In addition, students in Legal Clinic B become associated with the Legal Clinic law office where, under the supervision of the Director, they interview clients, establish an attorney-client relationship and take all necessary action to resolve a client's problem.

The spectrum of cases handled has broadened to include not only domestic relations matters but also an increasing number of consumer, landlord-tenant, home and automobile repair, and post-conviction relief cases, social security claims and appellate practice.

During the period from June 1, 1970 through May 31, 1971, 88 students represented 672 clients and made 222 court appearances. Fifty of the court settings involved contested cases which were disposed of as follows: three jury trials, thirty-one trials or temporary hearings before a judge and sixteen settlement agreements presented to the courts. Appeals are pending in four social security cases and two civil cases.

Continued expansion of the program is planned to meet the goals of providing opportunities for students to learn practical skills while rendering competent legal services to members of the low-income community.

XI. Placement

Assistant Dean Roy R. Anderson, assisted by Mrs. Lillian Blair, offered students a thorough program of placement. Students desiring to take advantage of this service were counselled in the preparation of attractive individual brochures. The number of interviewing firms was larger than in any previous year, and came from every section of the country. A tally as of September 1, 1970, of the seniors graduating in June reflects the following facts concerning placement:

XII. Continuing Legal Education

The School of Law and the Practising Law Institute of New York City co-sponsored thirty-one continuing legal education programs during the fiscal year. Total attendance at these programs exceeded 1,300. The purpose of these programs has been to bring in-depth programming on a variety of selected topics to lawyers in this area of the country. Each program has been of a specialty nature on current topical problems presented by outstanding experts from all over the country. The courses presented were: First Annual Estate Planning Institute; Defending Criminal Cases Forum; Master Corporate Plans; Successful Management Systems; Fringe Benefits Under the Tax Reform Act; Going Public-Advanced Techniques; Guidelines for the Prudent Fiduciary; Salvaging the Ailing Business; First Annual Tax Law Institute; Drug Liability Litigation; Legal Control of the Environment; Venture Capital-Legal and Business Problems; Federal Civil Practice; First Annual Trial Lawyers' Institute; Tax and Accounting Aspects of Corporate Acquisitions; Tax Planning for the Proprietorship, Partnership, and the Small Company; Pollution Litigation; Individual Tax Planning Under the Tax Reform Act of 1969; Enforcement and Litigation Under the Securities Laws; Receivership, Bankruptcy and Reorganization; Evaluation of a Personal Injury Case; Operating Diversified Insurance Companies; 2nd Annual Institute on How to Go Public; New Directions in Professional Corporations; Federal Tax Practice and Procedure; First Annual Institute on Family Law; Land-Acquiring, Assembling, and Financing; and Franchise Litigation.

The courses on Community Property and Federal Taxation and Franchise Litigation were planned and originated at the Law School; the former was also presented in Los Angeles and the latter in Las Vegas.

Attendance at individual courses has not been large, averaging under 50 registrants per program. This has enabled most of the courses to be presented in seminar form with opportunity following lectures or panel presentations for intensive discussion of specific points. Parts of some of the programs have been video taped for later instructional use in class and in other continuing legal education programs. Video taping has proven advantageous in several ways. On an occasion when one of the speakers was ill and unable to participate, the tape of his earlier Dallas presentation was played and the others present acted as a panel of commentators. The procedure was quite successful.

The association with the Practising Law Institute has provided an opportunity for participation by members of the Law faculty. The Dean, Associate Dean Pelletier, and Professors McKnight, Bromberg, Kennedy, Smith, Larson, and Scott Morris have presented papers on PLI programs. Associate Dean Pelletier has served as Director of Continuing Legal Education and is responsible for planning those programs which are initiated by the Law School. The program of continuing legal education has offered students the opportunity of attending without charge and becoming personally acquainted with the visiting speakers and panelists.

XIII. Other Events of the Year

The Student Bar Association sponsored a series of speakers during the year on a variety of topics. On the basis of the variety and success of these programs as well as other projects conducted by the Student Bar Association, the Law School Division of the American Bar Association awarded the Student Bar Association first place in the nation among law student bar associations in the size class of this Law School.

XIV. Conclusion

I express my sincerest appreciation to the University administration and to the members of the bench and bar and other friends who have assisted the School so significantly. Appendix C sets out the names of the Law School Committee of the Board of Trustees, the Board of Visitors, and the officers and directors of the Law Alumni Association. Appendix D is the Statement of Professor Howard J. Taubenfeld delivered at the Law School Convocation on September 7, 1971.

Respectfully submitted,
Charles O’Neill Galvin
Dean

Appendix D
2001: A LAW ODYSSEY
By Howard J. Taubenberg

Law School Convocation Statement, September 7, 1971

In asking me to deliver this opening address some time ago, Dean Galvin said that I should solve all the world’s problems for you and asked me if I needed as much as 15 minutes. The challenge was a little too great and I decided simply to try to suggest to you the kind of world that may exist for you as lawyers, of one sort or another, in time to come. The year 2001 is a convenient one—it’s only 30 years away. At that time, in 2001, assuming that we’ve had the wisdom to avoid blowing ourselves up before then, you who are now in law school will be, many of you, practitioners of one sort or another, but you will also be judges, legislators, Congressmen, Senators, perhaps President of the United States or of the United World Federation, or something of that sort. You will be too young, even by developing standards, in all probability for retirement; you will be a vigorous mid-fifties. You will be wondering what the devil all those young upstarts at what then are the law schools are thinking about. You will be totally, many of you, out of sympathy with their radical innovations. You will look back on the grand old days of law school in the ’70s as the golden days in legal education.

You will be lawyers and I would like to, as a preface, cite to you the remarks of the Chief Justice of the United States, delivered just a few months ago, which I think do set the tone. The Chief Justice said:

A strong, independent, competent and courageous legal profession is imperative to any free people. . . . We live in a society that is diverse, mobile, and dynamic, but its very pluralism and creativeness make it capable of both enormous progress or debilitating conflicts that can blunt all semblance of order. One role of the lawyer in a Common Law system is to be a balance wheel, a harmonizer, a reconciler. He must be more than simply a skilled legal mechanic. He must be that but in a larger sense he must also be a legal architect, engineer, builder, and, from time to time, an inventor as well. This is the history of the lawyer in America and in this respect he is unique among the lawyers of all societies.

It is always a little bit difficult to look forward, to make predictions. In the scientific field, in a recent study, it was noted that President Franklin Roosevelt, in 1937, had brought together the greatest scientific minds in the country in a “blue ribbon” science committee and had asked them to predict the future developments in science and technology. In fields where innovation had already begun, the panel was very good. They predicted, for example, color television and, indeed, commercials; they predicted developments in aviation including wider use of helicopters; they predicted crowded cities; they predicted smog, plastics, stereo FM radio, wide use of air conditioning, and on and on. But in 1937, just five years before the first nuclear pile became active, only one man, and he peripherally, had any vision that the atom might be broken, that atomic energy might soon be available. No one mentioned the jet aircraft, let alone rocketry. None thought that it might be possible within the foreseeable future for man to venture into outer space. No one previewed the computer with all its promise and problems. No one noted the resources of the continental shelf or the seas.

One way to get some perspective on what you will be doing in the year 2001 is to look backward 30 years and see what the world, at least this part of the world, looked like then. If we go back to 1940-41, we see in the United States a country still shaken by the great Depression and barely on its way to recovery. Law jobs were hard to get. Fifteen dollars a week was still good pay, if you could get a job in a law firm. The United States was not yet at war. In fact, the New Left—the then New Left—in the country was vigorously protesting United States’ commitments to any kind of overseas military enterprise. Those protests continued at least until the invasion of Russia by Nazi Germany. At City College in the City of New York, students were lying down on the drill field to protest the existence of ROTC. ROTC buildings were set afire in some parts of the country. The first draftees, those who had gone in in 1940 in the pre-War draft, were writing OHIO on the barracks walls, over the hill in October, the month when the draft was scheduled to end.

President Roosevelt had held himself out for and been elected to an unprecedented third term in 1940. The great constitutional issue of the day, the conflict between the federal government and the authority of the states, was still unresolved. These problems were only resolved finally later in the 1940’s, with the triumph of the central authority, though the changed voting pattern in the Supreme Court of the late 1930’s foreshadowed this result.

Great empires still existed in the world, though France had been subjected to Nazi conquest. A very large per cent of the territory of the world was British or French. In 1945, some years after our date of reference, when the United Nations was formed, it had 51 members. This fall it will have 129, most of those countries having developed in the last 30 years out of these old empires. Busing was an archaic word for kissing.

As we try to suggest what you and your colleagues will look like, in a sense, 30 years from now, we can, as with the scientists in President Roosevelt’s committee, look at what already exists rather than try to make even more far-out predictions. How will you be practicing law? Many of you will no doubt be practicing in firms very much like those that we see today. But perhaps, if present trends continue, and many of the best students, for example, no longer move into that sort of work, the firms will follow other current trends and move away from the 70 or 80 hour a week law practice to a more humane sort of practice involving, as is now true with a few firms, not only a good deal of time off for the younger lawyers to do other kinds of law work that intrigue them, but even concepts of sabbatical leave and summers off for refreshment of the soul and intellectual exercise.
There will patently, I suppose, be some sort of continuation of limited corporate practice of the law. At present, the corporate form is used, where it is, primarily for tax advantage, but perhaps the concept will be expanded. There will be, presumably, an increase in and an increased scope of public interest law firms, something unheard of in the 1940's, firms in which the primary interest is in clients who are public groups, or defenders of the environment, of the public interest, as they see it, or of what you will. There will be vastly, vastly more lawyers presumably engaged in the kinds of practice which in the 1940's went by the board, and which are increasingly needed—assistance to the poor and the indigent, the poor but not impoverished shopkeeper who has been thus far overlooked, the lower middle class, the middle class person. There will be no doubt legal service projects, all of them having difficulty in finding legal directors and satisfying their clientele. There will be lawyers working for salaries paid by groups, by labor unions, by federations and organizations of different kinds, all kinds of groups, not merely to handle the problems of that collectivity, as such, but to deal with the individual problems of the members of the group. Perhaps there will be "insurance" programs around the country where one will pay for legal services in advance. Perhaps, if things go that way, the legal practice will be socialized. Some of you may be practicing your law in communes. There was an interesting note in yesterday's Dallas News about the development of law communes in 20 cities or so in this country, where the practitioners band together socially, as well as for legal practice, where egalitarianism is practiced—every lawyer with his own typewriter—where the clientele tends to be the most despised, the most difficult in the country. Perhaps there will be an increase in a community of living, as well as in law practice.

You will have, in all probability, at your beck and call, more tools to work with. In one way or another, computers will help you in your practice. They will help you in research; God forbid that they will ever be used to decide cases. There will be paralegal persons handling many matters as they now do in many other countries—notarial work, certain kinds of law work, preparation of certain forms, and the like. This, I think, may amuse some who are already in practice who have noticed title companies and banks practicing law over the years, and whose most earnest plea in law practice is for a really competent legal secretary who already, to give away some trade secrets, draws most of the wills and some of the contracts and many other instruments in many highly reputable law firms.

There will be no doubt for you, for some of you, new lifestyles. If these trends continue, they may seriously affect the whole pattern of law. If we live in communes, even any small but substantial number of us, what happens to the laws of property, of inheritance, of bastardy? All of these will be problems which you, perhaps not I, but you will be grappling with as time goes by; these problems already exist.

There will be, as I suggest, new problems simply developing from the newer ways of life. Some of the old problems by the time you've been in practice for thirty years will no doubt have disappeared. Smog, for example, is simply in one broad sense an economic problem. When we really get annoyed enough about it, we will eliminate it, in all probability. You will be living, of course, in far more crowded cities, but hopefully in pleasanter ones.

What other kinds of problems will you be obliged to deal with? In a survey of scientists more recently conducted, looking toward the year 2000, there were some rather interesting points, all of which will affect your world. The scientists consulted, almost unanimously (this of course doesn't mean they're right) suggested that within the next 30 years there will be simple, inexpensive, almost completely effective fertility controls available. New organs will be available to humans by transplant, and we will be well on our way to having available artificial organs. All of these, of course, affect the question of what is life, what is death. It is entirely possible, for example, at the present time to take someone whose brain has been substantially destroyed, to use machinery with respect to this person, to feed them intravenously, to keep air running in and out of their lungs and the blood circulating, and thus preserve what is at least a semblance of life, indefinitely. If this had been done, for example, on that awful day of 1963 when President Kennedy was shot in Dallas, if the best available equipment had been used, if the back of his head had been patched so that fluids were not lost, it would have been entirely possible to have his body, if you will just think of that for a moment, kept "alive" indefinitely. At that time there was no law on the books relating to presidential succession. This person, having lost a fourth or so of his brain, and by all previous standards dead, would have been the President of the United States. Or would he? This is a question that you and others will need to deal with in other forms.

Other questions will arise in the course of your practice which, of course, are not strictly legal questions—they involve ethical, moral, economic, and other kinds of considerations as well. Of the scientists polled, over half believed that by 2001 there would be available, readily, non-narcotic drugs for changing personality in all sorts of ways. There will be the availability of controlled thermo nuclear power, thus eliminating, if it develops rapidly enough, man's dependence on fossile fuels. There will be created at least primitive forms of artificial life. There will be local, statewide, and even regional weather control. (Think of the disputes that will come from that.) There will be available biochemical general immunization, thus leading again to a vastly increased life span. Perhaps a little bit later—the seeds have already been sown, though some of these may never develop fully—there will be full scale genetic engineering. This will be hopeful in the cases of those who would otherwise be born with genetic defects which may thus be controlled at the source. But it is also true that scientists have already, with frogs, done work in what is called “cloning.” This consists of the implantation of a nucleus from one animal into an egg cell of another. This results in the production of a perfect duplicate of the animal from whom the nucleus was taken. Those of you gentlemen who dream of a Raquel Welch as the perfect companion may have your wish, if she were willing to spare a few nuclei. There are other implications, of course, of these abilities to duplicate exactly any living human being. If you don’t like the concept of Raquel Welch, think, as one commentator has noted, of the possibility, to go back to the 1940’s, of Hitler having been able to produce innumerable duplicates of himself.

In addition to generic engineering, there will be, in all probability, drugs which will permit the increase of intelligence perhaps to almost unlimited degrees; there will be, it is at least possible, the ability to regenerate limbs and organs which have been lost. Some animals can do this now. What we have to do is unlock the secret of how it is done. There will be chemical controls of aging. Once again, for those of you who draw wills at low cost, waiting gleefully for the death of the creator, the testator,
