Lawyers Seek Additional Space For Next Year

MEMBERS SEEK FIRST FLOOR ON S.M.U. BUILDING

Principal problem of the S. M. U. law school for the coming year will be the acquisition of additional space for law library, according to a group of students who met recently in the library of the law school.

The committee named by the administrative-advisory committee recommended that the school of law be placed in Farlin Memorial auditorium.

The university degrees and 24 years of teaching to his credit, told some­thing of his early career while in the law school, and also the address of the first anniversary of the law school.

Today's Lawyer Must Be

Nowhere and nowhere else than the law is there so much to be learned in a short time, for there are so many sets of judgment to make, so many steps to be taken, so many problems to be solved, that a lawyer, once he has passed the bar, never is entirely free from the necessity of making himself a vital part of the community in which he lives. The necessity of making himself so is absolutely essential for his own peace of mind and for the happiness of the people around him. And it is this necessity of making himself so that he may live in the society in which he works, that the old-time lawyer of the previous generation believed were necessary to observe, that the old-time lawyer of the present generation believes are necessary to observe, that the old-time lawyer of the future generation believes are necessary to observe, that the old-time lawyer of the never-to-be-seen generation believes are necessary to observe. Today's lawyer must be a member of the society, his clients, today's man-of-law must make himself intimately a part of the community in which he lives. Today's lawyer must be a member of the society, his clients, today's man-of-law must make himself intimately a part of the community in which he lives. Injunction Against Weird "Black Hand" Is Turned Down

JOE ROLLINS

Injunction against the weird "Black Hand" was granted by the U.S. District Court, according to authorities. The "Black Hand" is feared by many, and the court has denied the injunction to prevent its further actions. The court believes that the "Black Hand" does not pose a significant threat to the community and has therefore allowed the protests to continue.
