I. General Statement

In May, 1977, the School of Law completed its fifty-second academic year. At that time degrees were formally conferred on those who had completed their degree requirements in August, 1976, December, 1976, and May, 1977. The following tabular analysis reflects comparative data with respect to degrees conferred or certificates granted during the period 1967-1977.

	1967	1968	1969	1970	1971	1972	1973	1974	1975	1976	1977
Bachelor of Laws	125	8

Totals	159	163	172	163	190	164	191	229	279	276	306

The year concluded was one of measured accomplishments at the Law School. An excellent first year class was admitted, curriculum continued to receive attention for development in depth and breadth, placement services were expanded to offer a wide range of opportunities for students, the graduate program offered areas of concentration for students and members of the bar wishing to extend and intensify their basic legal education, continuing legal education provided a range of practical programs for lawyers in the local bar and throughout the state, and our library served students, members of the profession, and others in the surrounding community on a basis that would ensure the most effective use of this major legal research facility. In short, this Law School continues as a major asset to the University, to the legal profession, and to the community at large.

The School is one of 132 members of the Association of American Law Schools and is on the list of 164 schools approved by the American Bar Association. The Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar of the American Bar Association is the official accrediting Agency designated by the Office of Education of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. In March, 1977, the School was subject to a reinspection by a team consisting of Dean Ray Patterson of Emory University School of Law, Assistant Dean Peter deL. Swords of Columbia University School of Law, Professor Cameron Allen, the Head Librarian of Rutgers University School of Law, and Byron Attridge, Esq., a practicing lawyer from Atlanta, Georgia. This team acted jointly for the American Bar Association and the Association of American Law Schools. The last reinspection of the School took place in 1968.

Each member of the reinspection team received a substantial amount of information prior to his coming. Every aspect of the School's operation was covered in an elaborate questionnaire with supporting exhibits and documents. While on the premises members of the team interviewed students, faculty, staff, alumni, trustees, governors, the President and Provost and members of the bar. They visited classes, reviewed the clinic operation, law journals, and toured the facilities. Their report was highly complimentary to the School but called attention to three major areas of concern: the student-faculty ratio, faculty salary levels, and general law library support. These matters were the subject of a resolution of the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the bar passed at the annual meeting of the American Bar Association in Chicago in August, 1977.

The President of the University and I have joined in a letter response to the American Bar Association in which specific commitments are made to deal positively with the concerns expressed in the reinspection report. I am confident that we will make the required improvements.

II. Faculty

SMU's law faculty is an excellent group of men and women with many and varied interests. A review of their writings and activities in Appendix B attests to the significant contribution which they make to scholarly and professional accomplishments. The students conduct an extensive evaluation of faculty teaching each semester in a thorough and sometimes hypercritical fashion; on balance this survey is a tribute to the excellent classroom performance of our professors.

III. Degree Programs

The School of Law conducted the following major programs during the year 1976-77.

(A) The three-year Juris Doctor program. The requirements are 88 hours of required and elective courses for those students entering in the fall semesters, 1974, 1975, and 1976.

(B) The general graduate program for part-time and full-time students leading to the degree of Master of Laws. The requirements are 24 hours of seminar and course work prescribed by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies. A thesis may be submitted for as many as 12 hours of credit.

(C) The graduate program in international and comparative law leading to the degree of Master of Comparative Law. The requirements are 24 hours of seminar and course work prescribed by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies. A Certificate in Comparative

Law may in the discretion of the faculty be awarded to those students in the international and comparative law program who fail in some particular respect to meet all the grade and hour requirements for the Master of Comparative Law degree.

We continue to have an outstanding group of students from abroad working in the J.D. and M.C.L. programs. These are young men and women from the Middle East, Far East, Latin America and Europe who have finished law school in their own countries and are judges, lawyers, prosecutors, counselors in the various ministries of government, and the like. They provide an excellent professional dimension in our student life and return to their countries with a high respect for the American system.

(D) The graduate program in research and writing leading to the degree of Doctor of Science of Law. The requirements are prescribed for the candidate by the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies.

(E) The combined Juris Doctor and Master of Business Administration degree. This combined program is offered jointly by the School of Law and the Graduate Division of the School of Business Administration. The program is designed for law practice with a strong business background, and for business careers with a strong legal background. The two degrees may be obtained in four years. Separately, they would require four and a half or five years.

(F) The combined Juris Doctor and Master of Public Administration degree. This program is offered jointly by the School of Law and the Graduate Program in Public Administration of the School of Humanities and Sciences. The program is designed for those persons who desire career opportunities in the public sector. The two degrees may be obtained in four years. Separately, they would require four and a half years.

IV. Curriculum

The curriculum in effect for the summer session 1976 consisted of 11 sections of courses and seminars; during the regular session 153 sections of courses and seminars were offered. Under the program for the Juris Doctor degree, the student had to complete 41 hours of required courses and 47 hours of electives, including at least one course involving international and comparative law or jurisprudence and a seminar in which a substantial paper is required.

During the year new offerings included:

Selected Tax Problems offered by Professor William P. Streng and Lawrence B. Gibbs, Esq.

Tax Law Clinic under the direction of Mr. Dean V. Grossnickle

V. Recruiting and Enrollment

The mean averages for the Law School Admission Test and undergraduate college scores were 619 (81st percentile) and 3.4 (on a 4.0 scale), respectively, for the class entering in the fall of 1976. The means are calculated on the basis of all those admitted including special admissions pursuant to personal interviews and consideration of exceptional circumstances.

During the year, the number of women students numbered 206, students from abroad 22, and minority students (Black, Chicano, and American Indian) 16. As reflected in the tabulation, the first year students represented 33 states. Their undergraduate work was done in 104 different colleges and universities—24 Texas schools and 80 out-of-state schools.

Students and faculty have accepted a large measure of responsibility in the recruitment process, and the diverse geographical representation attests to the worth of these efforts.

VI. Underwood Law Library

Associate Professor Frances H. Hall holds the Bachelor of Arts, Master of Arts, Master of Science in Library Science, and Juris Doctor from the University of North Carolina. She resigned at the end of the year to accept the position as Librarian for the Supreme Court of North Carolina.

At the end of the 1976-77 fiscal year the Underwood Law Library collection totaled 228,667 volumes. Expenditures for library operations amounted to $345,736. The library received a number of gifts both of books and funds including a large contribution from Dallas lawyers. New acquisitions were made in all subject areas represented in the law school curriculum. Funds from the Bromberg Family Endowment were used for the purchase of books on corporation law, securities, and other areas of business law. Endowed funds made possible the continued expansion of the Erin Bain Jones Sea and Space Law Collection. In April, Dean and Mrs. Charles O. Galvin announced their establishment of the Josephine Short Lynch Memorial Fund to benefit the new library.

The assistant law librarian, James P. Murphy resigned in December, 1976, and was replaced by Thomas McKnight Steele, who holds the degrees of Bachelor of Arts, Master of Library Science, and Juris Doctor from the University of Texas at Austin. The full-time staff consists of five professional and six and one-half full-time equivalent non-professional librarians. During the year staff members participated in a variety of professional organizations.

The library is open to the public 103½ hours a week during the regular term and 89½ hours a week during the summer session. As the major law library in the Dallas-Fort Worth area, it serves the legal and business community as well as students and faculty from other institutions.

VII. Alumni Affairs, Law School Fund, Student Aid

The Alumni Association Council was chaired by Marshall J. Doke, Esq. Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Heath hosted the Houston area alumni at their home on February 22, 1977. On March 11, 1977, the Dean, Associate Dean Steele and Director of Development H. W. Perry hosted the East Texas area alumni for dinner at the Willow Brook Country Club in Tyler. Associate Dean Steele made personal visits to alumni in Fort Worth, Lubbock, and Amarillo. There was also the usual reception at the Texas Bar Convention in the summer.

William D. Powell, Esq. was Chairman of the 1976-77 Law School Fund. In addition to solicitation by mail, Mr. Powell headed a telefund at the Law School which ran for ten nights and involved 62 alumni as solicitors. Under his direction, gifts to the Law School reached an all time high of $176,012.15.

The second annual Law Library Fund of 1976-77 was chaired by Donald L. Case, Esq. All law firms and solo practitioners in Dallas were asked to support voluntarily the Law Library on the basis of $20 per lawyer (the approximate cost of one book). Dallas attorneys responded with gifts totaling $11,880.

Alumni in Taiwan and the government of the Republic of China invited Dean and Mrs. Galvin to be their guests during the summer of 1976. This was an opportunity not only to visit alumni in China but also in Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, and the Philippines. Similarly, Professors A. J. and Ann Thomas were invited through the offices of our alumni in Seoul to deliver papers at the Korean Legal Center. These visits provided clear evidence how our alumni without exception have achieved distinction in their own countries and are a great credit to the Law School. They are grateful for the opportunity given them here and they carry with them in their professional lives a great dedication to the principles of constitutional government.

VIII. Publications

Two student-edited law reviews are published by the School of Law, the Southwestern Law Journal and the Journal of Air Law and Commerce. The operation and management of these law reviews are vested in their respective Boards of Editors. The Boards are made up of senior students who have exhibited exceptional ability for legal research and writing. Other students are selected to participate on the basis of scholarship and through a writing competition conducted each year. In both publications, the work of students has produced periodicals of permanent value to the legal profession.

The Southwestern Law Journal is published five times each year and reaches law schools, attorneys and judges throughout the United States and abroad. Each issue includes articles by prominent legal scholars and practitioners dealing with significant questions of local, national, and international law. In addition, articles by students analyze recent cases, statutes and developments in the law. Each year one issue of the Journal is devoted to an annual Survey of Texas Law and contains articles by attorneys, law professors, and judges concerning current developments in the laws of Texas.

The Journal of Air Law and Commerce, a quarterly publication of the School of Law, was founded in 1930, and has been at S.M.U. since 1962. It is circulated throughout the world. Articles by distinguished lawyers, economists, government officials, and scholars deal with domestic and international problems of the airline industry, private aviation and of aerospace problems. Also included are student works on a variety of topical issues, student comments, casenotes on recent decisions, book reviews and editorial comments.

On March 3-5, 1977, the Journal of Air Law and Commerce sponsored its regular annual symposium on Back to Basics Approach to Aviation Litigation.

The Human Rights Journal is published quarterly by the School of Law and the Section of Individual Rights and Responsibilities of the American Bar Association. It is edited jointly by members of the faculty and students and includes articles by leading scholars and practitioners and notes and bibliographies by students on legal topics of humanistic concern. As of the end of the year, this publication will be published by the American Bar Association in magazine form.

The Advocate is a weekly newspaper published by students about the Law School community.

IX. Legal Clinics

Maxine T. McConnell, Director of Legal Clinic, is a Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Laws from Southern Methodist University.

Under the overall supervision of Professor Walter W. Steele, Jr., Associate Dean for Clinical Education, the clinical components continued to expand and prosper. Maxine T. McConnell, Director of the Civil Cases Clinic, and John A. Dennis, Associate Director, supervised a total of 49 students enrolled in the Civil Cases Clinic. These students handled a full spectrum of civil legal business for persons unable to afford counsel. Students interview and counsel with their clients and try lawsuits in the county and state courts. A total of 350 cases were handled last year.

For the first time, the students in the Civil Cases Clinic began to represent juveniles charged with delinquency. This new aspect of the clinic operation has proven to be quite successful and the law students seem to develop a special affinity for their juvenile clients.

In the Legal Extern Program, 49 students were placed in law office settings throughout Dallas County and Tarrant County. This program is supervised by Professor Steele and continues to be one of the most popular components of clinical education. The program allows students to participate in and observe the practice of law in settings that might not otherwise be available to them as law clerks, e.g., Federal Trade Commission, Securities and Exchange Commission, etc.

A total of 32 students participated in the Criminal Justice Clinic last year, supervised by Professor Roark M. Reed, Clinic Director. The Criminal Justice Clinic continues to be funded, in part, by the Texas Criminal Justice Council, with the balance of the budget being supplied by the Law School. Student demand for participation in the Criminal Justice Clinic remains quite high, and the students have become an integral part of the criminal justice administration system in Dallas County.

In cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service the Federal Taxpayers Clinic started operation in its new Law School headquarters in January, 1977. The clinic is supervised by Mr. Samuel R. Miller, a lawyer and certified public accountant. A total of 17 students have participated in this program which is supported in part by a generous gift from Shell Oil Company. The students represent taxpayers who have been audited by the Internal Revenue Service and have proposed deficiencies in taxes. Students attend lectures given by key personnel from the Regional Office of the Internal Revenue Service. This clinic is unlike any other in the United States, and is proving to be quite popular with the many students in the Law School who are interested in tax and business matters.

X. Moot Court

In the Texas Junior Bar Moot Court Competition, the School was represented by J. Christopher Cimaglia, Barbara J. Houser and Gary E. Keane. The team advanced to the semi-final round of the Competition.

In the Region X Competition for the National Moot Court Competition, the School was represented by Henryk S. Borecki, Barbara J. Houser and Gary E. Keane. In the regional competition for the Jessup International Moot Court Competition, the school was represented by Barbara J. Houser and Gary E. Keane. Henryk S. Borecki, Jarilyn C. Dupont, and Richard L. Scott also participated on the Jessup team as researchers and memorial writers. In the Jessup Competition, the team tied for first place.

In the Region XIII Competition for the first annual National Appellate Advocacy Competition, sponsored by the Law Student Division of the American Bar Association, the School was represented by Mark C. Enoch, James E. Montgomery, Jr. and Leslie F. Weisbrod. The team advanced to the semi-final rounds.

Gary E. Keane served as Chairman of the Moot Court Board for the academic year and Douglas D. Fletcher was chosen as Chairman-elect.

A distinguished panel of federal judges composed of Irving L. Goldberg, Patrick E. Higginbotham and W. M. Taylor, Jr. heard the final arguments in the Russell Baker Moot Court Competition in which Bruce E. Anton and Barbara J. Staubus were selected winners and Mary Emma Ackels and D. Paul Dalton were selected runners-up. Mary Emma Ackels was selected by the panel as the best oralist.

Gary E. Keane was elected to The Order of the Barristers, a national honorary organization which stresses excellence in appellate advocacy and brief writing skills in law school moot court programs.

XI. Placement

Interviews took place during the months of September, 1976 through May, 1977, and representatives of interviewing firms came from every section of the country. There were 2,111 separately scheduled student interviews. A tally as of December 20, 1977, of the seniors graduating reflects the following facts concerning placement:

Self Practitioners	12
Law Firms	150
Corporate Legal Counsel	21
Military Service (JAGC)	1
State and Federal Government Agencies	21
Judicial Clerkships	14
Other Legal Activities	20
Not Reported or Uncommitted*	33

* Some graduates have been waiting for their Bar Examination results before seeking employment.

We continue to strive for the widest possible circulation of our graduates' resumes to give them the maximum opportunity for placement.

XII. Continuing Legal Education

Sherry Smith is a Bachelor of Arts from California State University at Los Angeles and a Juris Doctor from Northwestern School of Law of Lewis and Clark College.

The Law School's Office of Continuing Legal Education began its second year of full-time operation with Ms. Sherry Smith, a member of the State Bars of both Texas and Oregon, continuing as Director.

Between September, 1976 and June, 1977, twenty-one seminars and short courses in professional development were presented, attracting over 2,000 registrants from throughout Texas as well as many from out of state.

The Law School continued its partnership of several years with the Practising Law Institute of New York by co-sponsoring with PLI programs on Current Developments in Environmental Regulation and Litigation, Federal Energy Administration, Consumer Credit 1977, Federal Civil Rights Litigation, Usury Laws and Modern Business Transactions, Construction Industry Labor Relations, Construction Contracts 1977, and S.E.C. Reporting Requirements.

Also continued was the series of highly successful programs in cooperation with the Dallas Bar Association. On April 1, a day-long clinic on Federal Procedure was conducted. During the coming year, these programs will be scheduled on a quarterly basis.

In addition to programs presented with the cooperation of PLI and the Dallas Bar, the Law School also presented programs in conjunction with North Texas State University, Texas Tech's Law School and Graduate School of Business, the American Subcontractors Association, the Dallas Association of Legal Assistants, Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism fraternity, and also produced programs in co-sponsorship with SMU's Real Estate Institute and the Division of Journalism.

The popular seminars on Recent Developments in Texas Law and Texas Family Law and Community Property will continue as annual events.

The Texas Civil Practice Clinic of June 24 under the chairmanship of Professor William V. Dorsaneo III was professionally tape recorded so that lawyers unable to attend the live presentation could purchase the set of lectures in addition to the printed material.

In addition to programs sponsored directly by the Law School, the Office of Continuing Legal Education provides program assistance for the State Bar of Texas when their Advanced Refresher Courses are held at SMU. The CLE Office also cooperates with the SMU School of Continuing Education in the development of SMU's paralegal studies courses.

Continuing legal education courses help to broaden the scope of the general Law School curriculum by offering students as well as practicing lawyers the opportunity to hear lectures from outstanding practitioners, law professors, and jurists from throughout the region and nation, often on subjects not included in their regular course of study. SMU law students and faculty are admitted to all CLE seminars at no charge, and they may obtain the program materials on an at-cost basis.

XIII. Other Events of the Year

On Thursday, March 31, 1977, at the R. L. Thornton Alumni Center, the School of Law was host to a joint meeting of the Board of Visitors, the Law School Committee of the Board of Trustees, and Officers and Directors of the Southern Methodist University Law Alumni Association. Members of the law faculty and student representatives, and others were also invited. The participants met in the afternoon with the members of the standing Law School committees. In the evening a dinner was held at which all of the participants and their spouses were in attendance.

On Saturday, May 21, 1977, the School of Law had its sixth formal Ceremony of Hooding the Juris Doctor candidates on the steps of the Underwood Law Library, followed by a reception for students, parents, and friends in the Law School Quadrangle.

In addition, the Student Bar Association planned and hosted during the year a series of speakers, including, inter alia, John W. Dean, III, former Executive Assistant to President Richard M. Nixon, William F. Buckley, Jr., Congresswoman Barbara Jordan, and Watergate Prosecutor Leon Jaworski.

XIV. Conclusion

As this goes to press, another academic year is well under way. I wish to express to all who have assisted us or contributed to our program in any way my sincerest appreciation.

Respectfully submitted,
CHARLES O'NEILL GALVIN
Dean, School of Law

Hooding Ceremony, Law Quadrangle, May 21, 1977.

Invocation by Richard John Helsper, member of the Class of 1977 and outgoing Vice President of the Student Bar Association:

Let us pray.

Almighty God, we humbly ask that you look with favor upon this group assembled before you. We ask you to bless in a very special way, the wonderful wives, parents, families and friends who have exhibited so much devotion and sacrifice during our many years of education. We ask you to guide the Dean and the Faculty of Southern Methodist University School of Law in the pursuit of excellence.

In a more personal way dear God, compel us to be just and honest in all our dealings. Let our motives be above suspicion. Let our word be our bond. Let us be kind in our criticism of others and slow to judge, knowing that we ourselves must one day be judged. Let us never associate material wealth with total happiness for the simple reason that a person with everything can be in misery, while the pauper who has nothing can be blessed with joy.

Dear God, we ask that you provide spiritual sustenance for the graduates of Southern Methodist University School of Law. Give us the strength of character to preserve the integrity of our profession. Help us to realize always that our first duty as lawyers is to serve our fellow man and, in so doing, to serve you. Guide us to become public servants in the finest tradition of the legal profession.

Bless our chosen profession and let us always be proud of it. And if any of us should be called upon to serve in an elected office, give us the strength and wisdom to preserve the public trust.

And finally, Lord, let us never forget the prayer of St. Francis of Assisi:

Where there is charity and wisdom, there is neither fear nor ignorance. Where there is patience and humility, there is neither anger nor vexation. Where there is poverty and joy, there is neither greed nor avarice. Where there is peace and meditation, there is neither anxiety nor doubt.

Amen

Statement of Dean Charles O. Galvin:

Mr. Vice President, Mr. Chief Justice, members of the faculty and staff of the School of Law, candidates for the various degrees in law, parents, spouses, children, relatives, members of the bench and bar, distinguished guests, friends all.

It is a great pleasure for me to welcome all of you here on this happy day, and on behalf of the entire Law School community I extend to the degree candidates the warmest good wishes and congratulations from us all.

The first law school class of Southern Methodist University started in the fall of 1925 and graduated in the spring of 1928 with a total of 11 members. This 50th class is the largest class in the history of the school; it has 272 candidates for the Juris Doctor degree, 14 for the Master of Comparative Law degree, 19 for the Master of Laws degree, and one candidate for the Doctor of the Science of Law degree. These numbers include those who completed the requirements for their respective degrees in August, 1976, December, 1976, and May, 1977, all of whose names are listed on the program for this ceremony and on the official University Commencement program which will be distributed tomorrow afternoon. In addition, there are participating with us today candidates for degrees in August, 1977, whose names are separately set out on the program.

We honor all the members of this class of 1977, for each one of you has worked diligently for the achievement of this day, but for some there are matters of special mention to which I now call your attention. If you will consult your programs, you will note the names of members of the class who have won special prizes and awards and the names of individuals and organizations who have made these prizes and awards possible. To the winners go our special congratulations and to the donors our gratitude for their support of quality and excellence in academic performance.

Yesterday afternoon the faculty of the School of Law met to approve the degree candidates for presentation to the President of the University. They have designated Zachary Lorne McCormick to receive his degree of Juris Doctor Summa Cum Laude, and Janice Vyn Sharry to receive her degree of Juris Doctor Magna Cum Laude. Nineteen members of the class will receive their degrees of Juris Doctor Cum Laude. The names of those who are receiving their degrees with honors are listed in the program and you can identify each of them by a special red and blue talisman which each one wears on his or her right sleeve.

Mr. Zachary Lorne McCormick is also designated as the Standard Bearer for the Class of 1977.

Last night the Order of the Coif formally inducted 27 members of the senior class into its society. The new members of Coif are listed on the program, and you can also recognize each of them by the special white linen circular coif which each one wears on his or her mortarboard, or academic cap. The Order of the Coif in this country honors excellence in legal scholarship and is the extension of the ancient English order of the Coif which has been in continuous existence since the Norman Conquest in 1066.

Mr. Gary Edwin Keane has been elected to The Order of the Barristers, a National Order whose purpose is the encouragement of oral advocacy and brief writing skills through effective Law School Appellate Moot Court Programs.

The School of Law offers with the School of Business Administration the joint degree of Juris Doctor—Master of Business Administration and with the Department of Political Science in the School of Humanities and Sciences the joint degree of Juris Doctor—Master of Public Administration. You will note the names of three students completing the joint degree programs. They will also appear on the Commencement program in the listing of degree candidates of the other school with whom we have the particular joint program.

I call your attention to these matters of special mention but I repeat with emphasis that we honor and congratulate all the degree candidates of 1977 for they have all been examined and sifted and screened and tested and reexamined through eight years of grammar school, four years of high school, four years of college and many through one or two years of graduate work and finally three or more years of law school.

Thus each in his or her own way justly deserves the rewards of this day.

Thanks and appreciation go out from the graduates and from the School of Law today to many, many people. Mothers and fathers, brothers and sisters, uncles, aunts, grandparents and in-laws—all have contributed not only in many cases with their financial resources but also with their encouragement and personal concern.

Many have come from great distances to be with us today. Two years ago both parents came from Tokyo to be with their daughter. Last year parents came from Brazil and Peru to be with their sons.

There are two distance records this year that constitute almost a dead heat. Mrs. Joon Mo Yang has just come from Seoul, Korea, to be with her son, Peter Yang, a candidate for the Juris Doctor degree, and Julia Huang has just arrived from Taipei, Taiwan, Republic of China, to be with her husband, Steven, a candidate for the Master of Comparative Law degree.

Special thanks go to spouses—husbands and wives of law students and children of law students. The Law Partners Club—whose members are spouses of law students—are our ushers today and this contribution of their help is one of their many services to this School.

Of special note is a husband and wife team graduating today. They are Janice Vyn Sharry and Michael Sharry. They met in a legal writing section in the first year, were married, and now have a new baby. Michael has demonstrated that he knows how to select both a good wife and a good lawyer, for Janice is graduating second in her class with the degree Juris Doctor Magna Cum Laude.

Law firms, alumni, trustees, representatives of the University central administration and friends of the School are represented here today to honor this class and to you we extend our thanks.

And to Law faculty, Law School staff and law librarians all of whom have worked so splendidly this year I express for myself, the students, alumni, and friends our sincerest appreciation.

Commencement is a time of endings and beginnings. Two members of the Law School family are retiring today. Ms. Billie Bamberger Brooks was born in Memphis, Tennessee, took library courses at the Cossitt Library in Memphis, worked at the Enoch Pratt Free Library in Baltimore and the Dallas Public Library before coming to Southern Methodist University in 1960. She retires as a member of the Law Library administrative staff, having served countless faculty, staff, students, lawyers and judges for 17 years.

Professor Harvey Leo Davis holds his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Akron and his law degree from Southern Methodist University. He served as a special agent with the Federal Bureau of Investigation during World War II and returned to Dallas to enter the private practice of the law. In March 1946 he was appointed Instructor and rose to the rank of Professor of Law. He retires this year as Professor of Law Emeritus after 31 years of service.

Three members of our faculty are leaving for other assignments: Professor and Head Librarian Frances Hunt Hall leaves to become the head librarian for the Supreme Court of North Carolina, Professor Robert Lee Bogomolny leaves to become the Dean of the School of Law of Cleveland State University. And Professor Osborne Reynolds who visited with us during the spring semester returns to his home base at the University of Oklahoma. We wish these esteemed colleagues good luck and Godspeed in their new assignments.

Associate Dean Harvey Wingo will resign at the end of the summer to resume full time teaching responsibilities, and Professor Joseph Webb McKnight has been appointed by the Board of Trustees of the University to the position of Associate Dean for Academic Affairs. We extend our thanks to Professor Wingo for his excellent contribution and to Professor McKnight for undertaking these new duties.

The Board of Trustees at its regular meeting last week approved promotions to the rank of Associate Professor of Law in the case of four members of our regular faculty.

The Board also appointed Professor Regis Campfield who has been visiting this year from the University of Notre Dame to be Professor of Law, Professor Vincent Steven Walkowiak who has been visiting this year from Florida State University to be Associate Professor of Law, and Professor Charles Robert Johnson who has been a Visiting Professor this year to be Visiting Professor for the next academic year.

Mr. H. W. Perry, Director of Law School Development, is being reassigned within the University.

There is a special member of the class of 1977 here today. Joe Robert Greenhill was born in Houston, Texas, attended public schools there and went to the University of Texas at Austin from which he holds the degrees of Bachelor of Business Administration with Highest Honors, Bachelor of Arts with Highest Honors, and Bachelor of Laws with Highest Honors. He was elected to the Phi Beta Kappa, Phi Eta Sigma and Beta Gamma Sigma honorary organizations and in the Law School was elected to the Order of the Coif. He was also Editor of the Texas Law Review.

He served in the Navy in World War II and later as First Assistant Attorney General of Texas. He practiced law in Austin for seven years and was appointed Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas in 1957. He served in that capacity until his appointment as Chief Justice in 1972, which position he has held continuously since that time. He is married to the former Martha Shuford and they have two lawyer sons: Joe Jr. who practices in Austin and William Duke who practices in Fort Worth.

Members of the State lower courts and intermediate appellate courts are here today, some of whose decisions the Chief Justice has affirmed and some of whose decisions he has reversed.

For a young lawyer seeking a role model of the highly skilled, dedicated and public spirited professional, there is no one who exemplifies that position better than the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas.

Pursuant to action by the Board of Trustees of Southern Methodist University President Zumberge tomorrow afternoon at the University Commencement Ceremony will formally confer upon him the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws.

Today we recognize him as a legitimate and proper member of this Law Class of 1977. Not the youngest member of this class, to be sure but certainly one of its most capable and energetic.

It is a great personal privilege for me to present a special member of the Class of 1977, the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Texas, the Honorable Joe Robert Greenhill.

This is the close of the 52nd year of this Law School and the 62nd year of this University. Six years ago the Trustees substituted for the Bachelor of Laws degree the present Juris Doctor degree, and each year from that time forward we have observed the custom dating back to medieval times of the formal hooding of the doctoral candidates. Two years ago on this occasion I thought it appropriate to look back on these academic traditions. I pointed out that the pageantry of this occasion is as old as the University system itself. Indeed, there are detailed chronicles of commencement exercises at the great medieval universities of Bologna, Montpelier, Paris, Salamanca, Oxford, and Cambridge which describe not only the solemn academic processions and ceremonies but also the feasting and merrymaking that attended graduation. The people who lived in the college towns in those days were glad when it was all over, for there are numerous accounts of townspeople and exuberant students mixing it up in tavern brawls. The flags we have here today are part of the tradition of the medieval university where the students identified the particular provinces or districts from which they came by an appropriate banner.

There is, however, one custom we do not observe. The doctoral candidate of that by-gone day was required to read his thesis to his fellow students before receiving the doctoral hood, and it was the custom, we are told, for his peers to jeer and whistle and catcall with great disrespect while the candidate was trying to be serious. Here today we have spared you this ordeal.

Last year was our nation's Bicentennial year, and it seemed fitting again to look back—to look back on 200 years of our own legal system and reflect on its solidarity and its capacity to withstand the stresses and strains of a number of critical events in our nation's history.

This year it seems in order to look forward, for this is the first year of the third century of our Nation's ongoing history and it is the second year of the last quarter of the 20th Century.

Insurance company actuaries tell us that a substantial majority of the members of this class will be alive and well at the beginning of the 21st century. Moreover, they will then be in the prime of their professional careers—senior partners of law firms, judges on the state and federal benches, general counsel of corporations, professors of law—in short, major decision makers in the civic and professional life of our nation. Insurance actuaries also tell us that more than 50 percent of this class will see the end of the first quarter of the 21st century and some will live well into the second quarter. And, finally, the life expectancy tables tell us that a very few hardy souls will even see the beginning of the second half of the 21st century. Don't any of you make book on this last possibility, however, for lawyers as an occupational class do not have a reputation among insurance companies for longevity.

For those of you who do make it into the second quarter of the 21st century the ominous reports released just this week predict an exhaustion of petroleum reserves so severe by that time that you will get about the city on a bicycle or in a horse drawn carriage, make your way across the country by coal fired steam trains, and travel to other continents by sailing ships with auxiliary coal fired steam power.

The problems that lie ahead even as we perceive them and speculate about them from this vantage point boggle the mind. Energy shortages may require intrusions into our homes and our offices with mandatory temperature controls, and surely our freedom of choice as to facilities of transportation will be ever more seriously restricted. Environmental and ecology regulations will enforce extensive controls on our use of soil, water, and air.

Universal medical care and delivery of health services, welfare benefits of all sorts, universal education of our people, and every form of economic activity will be the subject of elaborate regulations.

The conceptions of crime and criminal conduct are even now significantly changing. Criminal sanctions traditionally have required wilfulness, malice, or bad intent. Now an inadvertent violation of a complex, often incomprehensible, regulation may incur serious penalties for non compliance. Traditional family life which has been the base of our social fabric is now threatened with disintegration. The free enterprise and free market system will be severely tested as the world's goods become scarcer in relationship to the demands of a greater world population.

We as a nation are becoming keenly aware that there are limits to our wealth and resources and that hard choices will have to be made as to how we allocate what we have to what we want to do.

If the system is to be supportive of a free and civilized society, it is going to require an extraordinary capability of good lawyers to draft rules and regulations, to interpret them and to resolve conflicts under them.

The challenges that lie ahead are so gigantic and so enormous as to be almost beyond credence. Yet they are there, and every passing day makes demonstrably clear how very real they are and will come to be.

But if you will apply those same techniques of critical and thoughtful analysis which I hope we have taught you here to the dilemmas and conflicts of 1990, or of 2005, or of 2025, they will be resolved in a rational and orderly way in keeping with the best traditions of Anglo American jurisprudence.

And above all, our nation can enjoy true freedom only if the legal system, with all its rules and regulations, operates in the light of eternal verities of humaneness, fairness, decency, honesty, morality, and good faith. So long as these are the prevailing principles, those of you who return here for law class reunions in 1987, 1997, or 2027 by whatever motive power you may be able to get here can be secure in the fact that the best of the traditions of the past have been carried forward to assure the best of civilization in the future.

And now the Formal Hooding Ceremony will begin. Professors William Jorgen Flittie, Joseph Webb McKnight, and Roy Ryden Anderson will hood the candidates for the Juris Doctor degree.

We have here today Alumni or members of our adjunct faculty who have either a son, daughter, wife, or brother graduating. They are with the stage party and will be called at the appropriate time to participate in the Hooding Ceremony.

Mr. Bradley Keith Lollar, immediate past President of the Student Bar Association, will present the Juris Doctor candidates. Mr. Lollar, will you please proceed to be hooded first.

Mr. Richard John Helsper, immediate past Vice President of the Student Bar Association will now proceed to be hooded.

Will the other candidates please come forward and will the audience please hold your applause until all candidates have been presented

(The Juris Doctor Candidates are presented.)

We have here at the Law School each year lawyers, judges, and prosecutors from the Far East, the Middle East, South America and Europe who are engaged in a program of study leading to the Master of Comparative Law degree.

Professor Aaron Joshua Thomas, Jr., Chairman of the Committee on Graduate Legal Studies, will present these candidates.

(The candidates for the Master of Comparative Law degree are presented.)

We have here at the Law School each year a number of students in full time study and a number of practicing lawyers in part time study leading to the Master of Laws degree.

Professor Thomas will present these candidates.

(The candidates for the Master of Laws degrees are presented.)

What you have witnessed here is the end product of good teaching and good learning. In that regard, will the faculty of the Law School please stand and will all the degree candidates please stand and turn around to the audience and let us all express our thanks to you.

After the benediction this ceremony will be concluded. Will you please remain seated until the stage part and the degree candidates have recessed to Lawyers Inn.

We invite everyone to the reception which immediately follows just to the north of Lawyers Inn.

All the buildings in the Law Quadrangle will remain open. Please visit about as you may wish.

The Baccalaureate service in the morning is at 10:30 a.m. at McFarlin Auditorium and the Commencement Exercises are at 2:00 p.m. in Moody Coliseum. You may come to the Dean's office in Storey Hall at 3:30 tomorrow and all next week for your diplomas.

Mr. Randolph Thompson West, Chairman, Hooding Ceremony
Committee will now give the benediction.
