Willard Spiegelman, the Hughes Professor of English at SMU, has served as editor-in-chief of the Southwest Review since 1984, which will celebrate its centennial in 2015. It is this country's third oldest, continuously published literary quarterly. Contributors have included (in the old days) D. H. Lawrence, Edmund Gosse, Witter Bynner, and Mary Austin, and (in the recent past) Arthur Miller, Nadine Gordimer, Ursula LeGuin, Allan Gurganus, Allen Ginsberg, John Ashbery, Adrienne Rich, James Merrill, Tennessee Williams, Amy Clampitt, and Naguib Mahfouz.
