Whenever there is sufficient demand to warrant the formation of a class, instruction is given in code practice, and in the theory, construction, and operation of amateur radio receivers and transmitters. Three one-hour class periods are held each week, and whatever additional laboratory work seems expedient. Those taking this work pay a fee of one dollar and provide themselves with a textbook. The course is open to all students in the University.

THE SCHOOL OF LAW

Important Recommendations by the AMERICAN BAR ASSOCIATION

At the 1921 meeting of the American Bar Association, the following resolution was adopted:

"(I) The American Bar Association is of the opinion that every candidate for admission to the bar should give evidence of graduation from a law school complying with the following standards:

"(a) It shall require as a condition of admission at least two years of study in a college.

"(b) It shall require its students to pursue a course of three years' duration if they devote substantially all of their working time to their studies, and a longer course, equivalent in the number of working hours, if they devote only part of their working time to their studies.

"(c) It shall provide an adequate library for the use of the students.

"(d) It shall have among its teachers a sufficient number giving their entire time to the school to insure actual personal acquaintance and influence with the whole student body."

The above resolution was recommended by a committee consisting of the following:

ELIHU ROOT, Chairman, New York, N. Y.
HUGH H. BROWN, Tonopah, Nev.
JAMES BYRNE, New York, N. Y.

At the 1929 meeting of the Association the following resolution was adopted:

"That the law school shall not be operated as commercial enterprise, and that the compensation of any officer or member of its teaching staff shall not depend on the number of students or on the fees received."

History

The School of Law was established by the Board of Trustees on February 10, 1925, and was opened September 15, 1925. In 1928 it graduated its first class.

In 1927 the School of Law was placed on the list of approved law schools of the Council on Legal Education and Admission to the Bar of the American Bar Association. In 1929 the School of Law was admitted to membership in the Association of American Law Schools.

The Law Library

In the summer of 1935, the Law Library received by donation the one-thousand-volume library of the late Senator J. J. Faulk, of Athens. This addition brought the total number of volumes in the Library to more than fifteen thousand. The Library is being constantly added to by purchase and donation. It is housed in its own rooms adjacent to the law classrooms and is open from 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. every day except Sunday. In addition, the law student has access to the general library of the University.

Character of Instruction; Bar Courses; Case Clubs

The method of instruction is the case system. The study, analysis, and discussion of judicial decisions give an effective knowledge of legal principles and develop the power of independent legal reasoning. It is believed that students are best prepared for the practice of the law, not merely by instruction in the dogmas and precedents of the law, but by instruction in the origin, development, and functions of the law.

In all courses, care is exercised to co-ordinate the general principles of the common law with the law of Texas, and to correlate as far as possible theory with practice. In furthering this latter object, there is offered each year a series of short practical courses taught by outstanding members of the Dallas bar. In addition, four case clubs are maintained for the trial of legal problems, for which credit not to exceed one semester hour per year may be earned. The student is also encouraged, during his summer vacations, to do apprenticeship work with a good lawyer, thus gaining a practical knowledge of the profession for which he is preparing, and frequently paving the way for a business connection after his graduation.

Limitation of Enrollment; Small Classes; Personal Contact

The enrollment in the School of Law is limited to one hundred. A full-time faculty of five provides one instructor to every twenty students. This compares very favorably with an average of twenty-eight students per teacher in sixty-two law schools that are members of the Association of American Law Schools, and with nearly sixty students per teacher found in some of the leading law schools located in the Southwest. Classes vary in size from ten to fifty, as compared to classes of one hundred and fifty to two hundred in the larger schools.

The small classes enable the student to have a larger part in the daily recitations and the classroom discussions, and to maintain close personal relations with his instructors, a very valuable part of his legal training.

Requirements for Admission

Admission to the School of Law is under the control of the Dean of the School of Law. Correspondence relative to entrance and to transfer of credits from other law schools should therefore be addressed to him.

1. AS REGULAR STUDENTS

An applicant for admission as a regular student in the School of Law must be at least nineteen years of age, and must present evidence that he is of good moral character; that he has passed the medical examination; that he has fulfilled the general entrance requirements of the University; and that he has satisfactorily completed two full years, with credits amounting to at least 60 semester-hours in the College of Arts and Sciences, or the equivalent in another approved institution, with grade-points equal in number to the semester-hours of credit offered, that is, with an average grade of C on all college work taken. This is the grade-average required for graduation from the College of Arts and Sciences.

In accordance with the regulations of the Association of American Law Schools, of which this school is a member, no credit will be allowed for "non-theory courses in military science, hygiene, domestic arts, physical education, vocal or instrumental music, or other courses without intellectual content of substantial value," nor for courses of intellectual content, where such credits were acquired by correspondence or extension instruction since December 28, 1931. Students preparing for the law are urged to arrange their courses so as to get at least one year's work in each of the following subjects: English Composition, English Literature, English History, American History, Economics, Government, Mathematics, Accounting, a natural science. If a foreign language is elected it should be Latin. Attention is directed to the combination of courses listed below by which a student may secure the B.A. degree or the B.S. degree in Commerce, together with the LL.B. degree, in six years.

2. AS SPECIAL STUDENTS

In rare cases, a person twenty-three years of age not meeting the foregoing scholarship requirements may be admitted as a special student, if he satisfies the Dean of the School of Law that he is of good moral character, possesses sufficient capacity, training, experience, and industry to enable him to profit by the instruction offered, and that he will not be a hindrance to the school. Such a person cannot receive credit for work done nor be a candidate for a degree. If such student proves unsatisfactory, he will be dropped from the school. The Association of American Law Schools provides in its articles of association that the number of special students "admitted each year shall not exceed ten per cent of the average number of regular students admitted by the school as beginning law students during the two preceding years." The school applies this rule. A special student who successfully completes the three-year course will be given a certificate so stating.

3. AS TRANSFERS FROM OTHER LAW SCHOOLS

An applicant who is qualified to enter the School of Law as a candidate for a degree, and who has satisfactorily completed a period of study in a law school of good standing, having a three-year course, and approved by the faculty of this school, may be given equivalent rank in this school upon presenting a properly authenticated certificate of such work; provided that he has maintained an average grade of C in all courses taken, or an average grade of C on the courses taken during his last two periods (semester, term, or summer session) if his study has extended over a longer time. The right is reserved to give credit only on examination and to withdraw credit if the student's work in this school is unsatisfactory.

Registration

All students must matriculate in person at the office of the Dean of the School of Law. For dates of matriculation see page 6. Classes meet September 21. The classes meet in the second semester on February 1, 1937. Matriculation for the second semester is on February 1 and 2, 1937. An extra fee is charged for late matriculation. An additional charge of $2.00 is made for late payment of fees.

The prospective student must present (1) evidence of good character, (2) certificate of physical examination, (3) official statement containing a full record of previous college work, including the credits on entrance, with an honorable discharge from such college, or, if he is the holder of a degree, his diploma, or a certificate showing that he was graduated from such college.

Case Club Work

Four case-clubs are maintained among the students of the School of Law for arguments on questions of law. The student-attorneys in these cases submit carefully prepared briefs of the law questions involved, and then argue the cases orally before a judge or banc of judges. In the second semester, the four clubs contest among themselves for the Arthur A. Everts Award.

Co-operation and Assistance of the Dallas Bar

The School of Law seeks at all times to co-operate and work in harmony with the organized bar of Dallas, and in return receives aid from the bar. The Bar Association maintains an advisory committee to counsel with the authorities of the University in regard to courses of study and the development of the law school. Four prominent members of the bar are giving courses in the law school, as is shown in the curriculum at page 217. Members of the bar aid materially by serving as judges in the case-club arguments and inter-club contests. Many law students during vacation serve as apprentices in the offices of members of the bar.

Graduation

The degree of Bachelor of Laws (LL.B.) will be conferred upon a candidate therefor who has credit for 76 semester-hours of law work distributed over a period equal to three scholastic years, who is of good moral character, and who has complied with the following conditions:

1. He must have been a resident at this school for at least one year next preceding the granting of the degree.
 2. The work done during his last year must not have been counted toward a law degree elsewhere.
 3. An average grade of at least C (70) must be made on all courses completed within the two semesters next preceding graduation. In computing this average there will be included each course in which the student shall have taken the final examination, regardless of whether credit for the course is necessary to make up the minimum requirement of 76 semester-hours.
 4. No more than nine semester-hours with a grade of D (60-69), in any one year, may be counted toward a law degree. Where the student is registered for but one semester of the scholastic year, or where work is taken in a summer session, or where the student is registered for less than 24 semester-hours during the scholastic year, the maximum number of credit-hours allowed for work with a grade of D shall be one-third of the total hours for which the student is registered.
 5. The law degree will not be conferred upon anyone markedly deficient in English, nor upon anyone who has not completed all the work in the first year, which is prescribed.
- Candidates for the LL.B. degree having the highest average grade, not to exceed ten per cent of the graduating class, may, by vote of the Law faculty, be awarded the degree cum laude. No one shall be eligible who shall have taken elsewhere more than one-third of the work offered for this degree. The average grade shall be based on work done in this school only; but to receive the degree cum laude a transfer from another college must have at least a B average in law courses in the school previously attended.

At the beginning of the second semester the faculty elects the highest ten per cent of the senior class to membership in the local scholarship society known as the "Order of the Woolsack".

Six-Year Combination Leading to A. B., or B. S. in Commerce, and the LL. B. Degree

A student by pursuing one of the schedules of study suggested below may secure a degree in the College of Arts and Sciences and a degree in the School of Law in six years. To do this, he must, before applying for a degree, (1) satisfy the catalogue requirements for the college degree he desires, and (2) complete ninety semester-hours of college work, at least thirty of which must be taken in Southern Methodist University. At the end of two years of satisfactory work in the School of Law, he will be granted the college degree, and at the end of another year, upon satisfying the requirements of the School of Law, he will be granted the LL.B. degree.

A suggested schedule leading to the A.B. degree is as follows:

Rules and Regulations

The School of Law has its own rules governing registration, changing courses, classroom attendance, quizzes and examinations, grades and reports, failures and continuance in the school, and graduation. These rules are kept posted on the official bulletin board and the student is charged with notice of them. With these exceptions all students of the School of Law are subject to the rules and regulations of the University except that the regulation requiring physical education does not apply to the granting of the law degree.
