B. EGYPT

1. Anti-FGM Amendment

In August 2016, Egypt criminalized female genital mutilation (FGM), providing up to seven years' imprisonment for its commission or up to fifteen years if causing death or permanent deformity.\footnote{George Sadek, Egypt: New Law Enhancing the Penalties for FGM Approved by Parliament, LIBR. OF CONGRESS (Sept. 14, 2016), http://www.loc.gov/law/foreign-news/article/egypt-new-law-enhancing-the-penalties-for-fgm-approved-by-parliament/.} The law also provides for a maximum of three years' imprisonment for those accompanying the victims.\footnote{New Bill Increases Jail Terms as FGM Becomes a Felony in Egypt, AHRAM ONLINE (Aug. 28, 2016), http://english.ahram.org.eg/News/241850.aspx.}

C. LIBYA

1. New Draft Constitution

In February 2016, Libya's Constitution Drafting Assembly, elected in 2014, produced a revision of its October 2015 draft.\footnote{Suliman Ibrahim, Libya's Long Awaited Constitution: Will It Finally See the Light of the Day?, CONST. NET (Mar. 22, 2016), http://www.constitutionnet.org/news/lybia-long-awaited-constitution-will-it-finally-see-light-day.} If accepted by two-thirds of a public referendum, it will become "Libya's first permanent constitution since Gaddafi's coup in 1969."\footnote{Id.} The draft, built on the doctrine... of separation of powers with the country a unitary state, makes Arabic the official language and Islam its sole religion.9

D. TUNISIA

1. Criminal Justice Reform

In June 2016, lawmakers amended the Criminal Procedure Code in order to provide some rights to the accused.10 The amendments grant suspects the right to an attorney during initial investigations and in detention, reduce the time officials can hold suspects during interrogation, and invalidate court proceedings where police have breached the new procedural rules.11

2. Economic Reforms

Building on its 2015 economic reform laws, in September 2016 lawmakers approved a law to encourage foreign investment.12 The economic environment worsened after the Arab Spring revolts, leaving millions of youth unemployed.13

E. MOROCCO

1. Regulation Reform

In 2016, reforms were introduced including an update of the insurance act requiring mandatory insurance for building activities and against catastrophic events, implementation of the Casablanca Stock Exchange's new regulations, and implementation of a new regulation governing commercial lease relationships.14

F. WESTERN SAHARA

1. UN Evacuated, Ceasefire Breach Claim

In March 2016, Morocco gave the UN Mission for the Referendum in Western Sahara (MITNURSO) seventy-two hours to evacuate eighty-four staff after the UN Secretary General described the Western Sahara situation as an "occupation."\textsuperscript{15} The UN Security Council extended MINURSO's mandate in April 2016 calling for a return to its "full functionality."\textsuperscript{16} After Morocco sent armed personnel to the Guergarat buffer zone in August 2016, the Polisario Front claimed Morocco had violated the 1991 ceasefire.\textsuperscript{17}

2. EU/Morocco Trade Agreement

In December 2015, the EU Court of Justice (ECJ) suspended application of an EU-Morocco trade agreement as the EU had not considered protection of the Saharawis' rights in concluding the agreement.\textsuperscript{18}

In September 2016, ECJ Advocate General Melchior Wathelet held that Western Sahara is not Moroccan territory and therefore the agreement is inapplicable to it.\textsuperscript{19}

II. West Africa

A. Benin

1. New President to Reduce Presidential Terms

Benin held non-violent, free elections in March, 2016.\textsuperscript{20} Newly elected President Patrice Talon, who replaced two-term President Thomas Boni Yayi, announced he plans to reduce presidential mandates to a single five-year term.\textsuperscript{21}

B. Burkina Faso

1. Foreign Terrorist Fighters Law

Burkina Faso adopted an updated counter-terrorism law in May 2016 to curb the threat of foreign terrorist fighters. Over 25,000 children have left their homes in recent years to fight for terrorist and militant groups operating in the North Africa and Middle East regions.

C. Cape Verde

1. Aviation

Aiming to transform air transportation into one of the country’s main economic drivers, Resolution 13/2016 of February 22, 2016, approved a plan to improve air traffic, restructure national airline TACV, and strengthen the air transport liberalization policy.

2. AML Strengthened

Cape Verde’s anti-money laundering framework was strengthened with Law 120/VIII/2016 of March 24, 2016, reinforcing duties of diligence and collaboration, and widening the powers of public authorities to combat money laundering.

D. Côte d’Ivoire

1. Gbagbo Trials

In January 2016, former Ivorian President Laurent Gbagbo went on trial at the International Criminal Court (ICC) for crimes against humanity arising out of the 2010 presidential elections. Gbagbo, the first former president to reach trial at the ICC, pleaded not guilty. The ICC also issued an arrest warrant for former first lady, Simone Gbagbo, but the... country did not transfer her to the ICC. In May 2016, the former first lady went on trial in Abidjan on charges also related to 2010–2011 post-election violence. She is currently serving a twenty year sentence for crimes against humanity.

2. Constitutional Changes

On November 1, 2016, over 93% of Côte d'Ivoire voters approved a new constitution. The new constitution, inter alia, requires that only one parent of a presidential candidate be a natural-born Ivorian. It also establishes a Senate, one-third of which will be appointed by the President, and creates the post of Vice President.

E. GAMBIA

1. ICC Withdrawals

In November 2016, Gambia became the third African country to announce its withdrawal from the ICC, following Burundi and South Africa. The decision appeared related to the long-standing contention by African leaders that the court was biased, with most ICC investigations involving African nations. Kenya, Namibia, and Uganda are also thought likely to withdraw.

2. Jammeh Defeat

In a surprise victory in December 2016, twenty-two-year incumbent Yahya Jammeh conceded defeat in the presidential election to real estate developer Adama Barrow.

1. Petroleum Bill Passed

   The Ghana Petroleum (Exploration and Production) Bill, 2016 passed into law on August 5, 2016. Under the law, the selection of companies in down, mid, and upstream transactions must be done exclusively “through an open, transparent, and competitive” public tender process.

G. Guinea

1. New Cabinet Makes Key Female Appointments

   In January 2016, following the inauguration of Alpha Condé for a second five-year presidential term, Prime Minister Mamady Youla appointed sixteen new cabinet ministers. Several key appointments were women, including the new Minister of Economy and Finance, forty-four-year-old Malado Kaba, who has spent the majority of her career at the European Commission (EC) and will be responsible for making Guinea an emerging economy.

H. Guinea-Bissau

1. Agreement Reached to End Crisis

   In September 2016, rivals in Guinea-Bissau agreed to a roadmap for a new government. The agreement aims to end the year-long political crisis that began with President Vaz’s dismissal of Prime Minister Domingos Simoes Pereira in August 2015, and provides a plan to form a consensus government that will revise the constitution and reform the defense sector.

I. LIBERIA

1. Liberia Resumes Control Over Security

On June 30, 2016, the UN Mission in Liberia (UNMIL) handed responsibility for security back to Liberia after taking control thirteen years ago. The peacekeeping mission assumed control in 2003 following civil wars that left hundreds of thousands dead and displaced more. The UN Secretary General’s Special Representative relayed that UNMIL would continue to support Liberia in a reduced capacity.

J. MAURITANIA

1. Calls to Reject Law Restricting Freedom of Association

In June 2016, the UN Special Rapporteur on the Rights to Freedom of Peaceful Assembly and of Association, Maina Kiai, called on Mauritania to reject a proposed law finding that the law restricted the right to freedom of assembly and association. If passed, state authorization would remain necessary to establish an association in Mauritania.

2. Anti-Slavery Activists Appeal Conviction

In August 2016, a Nouakchott tribunal found thirteen members of the Resurgence of the Abolitionist Movement “guilty of charges including being part of an unauthorized organization and inciting attacks against authority.” Slavery was criminalized in Mauritania in 2007, but concerns continue about abolition of the practice.

ongoing violence due to the unresolved 2012 conflict, combined with international terrorism within Mali.⁵⁰

2. ICC Conviction

In September 2016, the ICC convicted Ahmad Al Faqi Al-Mahdi, a senior member of the Ansar Eddine armed group, and sentenced him to nine years imprisonment for his role in Mali’s 2012 conflict.⁵¹

L. NIGER

1. UNODC Strengthens Investigative Capacity

In May 2016, as part of the UN Regional Integrated Strategy for the Sahel (2013–2017), the UN Office of Drugs and Crime (UNODC), in collaboration with the government of Niger, provided training to judges and others to reinforce the country’s ability to investigate terrorism cases.⁵² Landlocked between Libya, Mali, and Nigeria, Niger faces terrorist threats that range from kidnapping to human trafficking.⁵³

M. NIGERIA

1. Climate Change Agreement Signed

In September 2016, President Muhammadu Buhari signed the Paris Agreement, part of the UN Framework Convention on Climate Change (UNFCCC).⁵⁴ The Agreement aims to fight climate change by keeping a global temperature rise below two degrees Celsius, more than pre-industrial levels this century.⁵⁵

2. Gender Equality Bill Opposed

In September 2016, the Nigerian Senate approved the text of the controversial Gender and Equal Opportunities Bill at a second reading, but it has thus far failed to pass into law. Muslim clerics in Nigeria oppose its passage as incompatible with Islam after it already failed to pass in March on the same grounds. The Bill aims to give legal redress for discrimination on the grounds of gender.

N. SÃO TOMÉ AND PRÍNCIPE

1. Data Protection Law

In May 2016, São Tomé and Príncipe enacted a legal framework for data protection matters (Law No. 03/2016). The Data Protection Law takes direction from the European Data Protection Directive and Portuguese Data Protection Law and establishes a national agency to implement the law.

O. SENEGAL

1. Shortened Terms Inapplicable to Current President

Senegalese President Macky Sall put constitutional changes, including a reduction of presidential terms from seven to five years, to a referendum in March 2016. Following a Constitutional Council opinion, Sall nonetheless declared the reduction in term lengths inapplicable to his tenure and that, contrary to a promise made when he was elected, he would stay in office until 2019.

2. Former Chad Ruler Convicted

In May 2016, the hybrid Chambres Africaines Extraordinaires convicted former Chadian ruler Hissène Habré of crimes against humanity and sentenced him to life in prison for rape, sexual slavery, and ordering killings during his eight-year rule. Habré, who had challenged the tribunal’s legitimacy and had to have court-appointed lawyers for his defence, was given fifteen days to appeal.

1. Constitutional Overhaul Proposed

   In March 2016, Sierra Leone’s Constitution Review Committee published a revision of its draft report, following a three-year review. The report proposes a radical overhaul of the 1991 Constitution strengthening multi-party democracy and creating an open and transparent society. The recommendations now go to a national referendum.

Q. Togo

1. FOI Law

   On March 10, 2016, the Togo National Assembly approved a freedom of information law. The new law guarantees the right to information with exemptions, including for personal information of others without consent, and for disclosure that could damage international relations.

III. Central Africa

A. Cameroon

1. New Commercial Legal Framework

   A revised legal framework on commercial activities in Cameroon was approved in late 2015 covering, inter alia, the distribution and sale of products and price formation, product warranties, and after-sales services.

2. Common Law Lawyers’ Strike

   Cameroon’s common law lawyers went on strike October 11, 2016, protesting what they term the government’s disregard for the common law. Lawyers’ association leaders call on President Biya to hold an emergency session of the Higher Judicial Council and to redeploy all Civil Law magistrates from the Common Law North West and South West Regions.

B. CENTRAL AFRICAN REPUBLIC

1. Peaceful Elections

On February 14, 2016, the Central African Republic elected Faustin Archange Touadera as president in elections some hoped would strengthen the country's fragile peace.71 Touadera served as Prime Minister for President François Bozize who was toppled in 2013 by the largely Muslim Seleka rebels.

2. Head of Armed Forces Assassinated

In October 2016, the head of the Central African Republic's armed forces, Marcel Mombeka, was shot dead and his son wounded in an attack in a predominantly Muslim neighbourhood in Bangui.72 Concerns remain that there could again be widespread violence in the country.

C. CHAD

1. Chad Assumes AU Presidency

Idriss Déby Itno, President of Chad, was elected to chair the African Union in January 2016, succeeding the one year term of Zimbabwean President Robert Mugabe.73

D. CONGO (DEMOCRATIC REPUBLIC)

1. Criminal Law Harmonized

During 2016, DRC criminal law was harmonized with international commitments, notably the International Criminal Court's statute. The new law introduces the crimes of genocide, crimes against humanity, and war crimes.74

2. Insurance

Under Decree 16/001 of January 16, 2016, a new insurance regulatory authority, safeguarding the rights of insured parties and beneficiaries, and ensuring sector solvency, was created.\(^75\)

E. Congo (Republic)

1. Afreximbank Accession

In March 2016, Congo authorized accession to the 1993 African Export-Import Bank agreement.\(^76\) Afreximbank’s objectives are to promote African trade and act as an intermediary to funding Africa with non-African exporters and importers.

2. PM’s Powers Enacted

Following adoption of the Congolese Constitution by referendum in 2015, that, inter alia, created the Office of Prime Minister, Congo’s Prime Minister enacted Decree 2016-175 of May 30, 2016, outlining his office’s competencies, staff positions, organization, and missions.\(^77\)

F. Equatorial Guinea

1. New Data Protection Law Enacted

With Law 1/2016 of July 22, Equatorial Guinea enacted a new data protection regime.\(^78\) The regime is framed by principles set out in the European Data Protection Directive guaranteeing that personal data is not transferred without adequate consent or that processing of personal data does not take place for an unauthorised purpose.

2. State Administration

In 2016, the government enacted measures aimed at improving equal access to opportunities for women, tackling youth unemployment, and reducing crime.\(^79\)

G. Gabon

1. Gabon Re-joins OPEC

After a twenty-one year absence, Gabon re-joined the Organization of the Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC) in July, looking to boost its declining oil production and alleviate pressure from a decline in oil prices. Gabon originally joined OPEC in 1975 as its smallest member by oil production, but left in 1995 due to OPEC’s high membership fees and the country’s comparatively low oil production.

IV. East Africa

A. Burundi

1. UN Security Council Approves Police Presence

In March 2016, the UN Security Council resolved to deploy UN police to Burundi to monitor the security and human rights situation despite Burundi’s objections claiming its forces were in control of the situation. The African Union had abandoned a plan to send 5,000 peacekeepers after the Burundian government objected; 200 AU observers are expected to deploy instead.

B. Djibouti

1. UMP Leader Wins Fourth Presidential Term

In April 2016, the leading UMP party leader Ismail Omar Guelleh won a fourth consecutive five year term as president of Djibouti. Guelleh had won the 2011 election after the country’s parliament altered the constitution to allow him to extend his rule.
C. Eritrea

1. Human Rights Report

In June 2016, the UN Commission of Inquiry (COI) on Human Rights in Eritrea issued a second report. The report concluded that crimes against humanity including enslavement, forced disappearances, torture, and rape have been committed in a “widespread and systematic manner” in Eritrea over 25 years. The COI, inter alia, recommends referral to the International Criminal Court.

D. Ethiopia

1. State of Emergency

On October 8, 2016, Prime Minister Hailemariam Desalegn declared a six month state of emergency following widespread anti-government unrest. Measures include curfews, restrictions on the opposition, and curbs on diplomats following attacks on foreign-owned businesses and demonstrations over land and political rights. On October 20, 2016, authorities detained 1,645 suspects.

E. Kenya

1. Kenyan Police Charged with Kimani Murder

In July 2016, four police officers were charged with the murder of lawyer Willie Kimani, his client Josephat Mwenda, and their driver Joseph Muiruri. The bodies of the three men were discovered a week after Kimani filed a case against a police officer on behalf of Mwenda. The killings sparked outrage, as police have been blamed for past extrajudicial killings inside Kenya; the government denies the existence of police death.

F. RWANDA

1. President to Seek Third Term

   Following changes to the constitution permitting him to seek a third term, Rwandan President Paul Kagame announced in January that he would again run for office in 2017.95 Kagame disclaims wanting to be president for life.96

G. SEYCHELLES

1. Seychelles Ranks High on IIAG Index

   In 2016, Seychelles rose to fourth position, behind Mauritius, Botswana, and Cape Verde, on the Ibrahim Index of African Governance which looks to safety and the rule of law, participation and human rights, human development, and sustainable economic opportunity.97

H. SOMALIA

1. Somali Elections Postponed

   The postponed Somali elections gave rise to a complex system viewed as ‘the least objectionable compromise’ in the words of the UN special envoy to Somalia.98 The process will take over a month and involves clan elders selecting delegates to 275 electoral colleges.99

   Those colleges will then vote for a lower house of parliament distributed between the four majority and minority clans. In October 2016 Somalia’s new federal states selected 54 members of the upper house with a president and speakers of each house to be elected by November 30, 2016.100

1. NGO Bill

In February 2016, the South Sudanese president signed a law imposing new restrictions on non-governmental organizations operating in the country. Provisions included the disclosure of funding sources, consent to monitoring and evaluation by the government, and requiring a minimum 80% of all employees of the NGO to hold South Sudanese citizenship.

J. SUDAN (REPUBLIC)

1. Constitutional Reform

On October 10, 2016, Sudan concluded a far-reaching two-year National Dialogue held with political parties, armed movements, government officials, and non-governmental organizations, tribal leaders, religious groups, and others. The resulting National Document agrees to establish a new constitution and framework for Sudan, with just three groups not signing on: the Justice and Equality Movement, the Sudan Liberation Army, and the Sudan People's Liberation Movement—North.

K. TANZANIA

1. Marriage Act Partially Unconstitutional

In July 2016, the Tanzanian High Court found sections of the Tanzania Law of Marriage Act unconstitutional. The act set a minimum age of 14 for girls to marry and 18 for boys which the High Court found to contravene provisions against gender discrimination.

C. Botswana

1. Fracking Rights Sold

In late 2015, Botswana sold rights to a UK energy company to drill in protected Kgalagadi Park lands along the South African border. Conservationists and park officials expressed concern about the impact on wildlife from the drilling that would occur.

2. Botswana Affirms ICC Commitment

Botswana criticized neighboring South Africa’s decision in October 2016 to withdraw from the International Criminal Court, finding the move incompatible with obligations to the African Union and stating that it “betrays the rights of the victims of atrocious crimes to justice and . . . undermines the progress made to date in the global efforts to fight impunity.” Botswana reaffirmed its commitment to the ICC."

D. Lesotho

1. Vice Chancellor Survives Attack

On May 6, 2016, Acting Vice Chancellor of the National University of Lesotho Professor Mafa Sejananmane and his family survived a gunshot attack at his home in Lesotho. The African Union Commission expressed concern at the deteriorating state of the rule of law and human rights in Lesotho and supported the Southern African Development Community (SADC) to implement the Phumaphi report and address the political crisis in Lesotho.
E. MADAGASCAR

1. President Names New PM

In April 2016, President Hery Rajaonarimampianina appointed the interior minister, Solonandrasana Olivier Mahafaly, as the new prime minister, two days after a confused announcement over the resignation of the previous office-holder.121 The president's office had announced that Prime Minister Jean Ravelonarivo and his cabinet had resigned, an action Ravelonarivo denied.122 Mahafaly was confirmed as prime minister and head of government.123

F. MALAWI

1. Land Bills Signed Into Law

In 2016, President Peter Mutharika signed a series of Land Bills into law, purportedly to enact policies from the 2002 Land Policy.124 Proponents highlight provisions allowing for the registration of customary land to individuals (including women).125 Critics say the legislation stripped tribal chiefs of traditional powers and that the new laws failed to address historical imbalances with foreigners.126

G. MAURITIUS

1. ICCA Comes to Mauritius

In May 2016, Mauritius hosted the 23rd Congress of the International Council for Commercial Arbitration, the first time the ICCA has held its bi-annual Congress in Africa.127 Mauritius has made conscious reforms to update its legislation (enacting the International Arbitration Act 2008), establish a new arbitral institution (with the London Court of International Arbitration), and create a panel of arbitration judges within its judiciary.128
