Berger, Nobody Loves an Airport, 43 S. CAL. L. REV. 931 (1970).

The subject is airport litigation, and the article fully explores its problems: noise suits, intra-governmental relationships and airport development.

Stern, Domestic Commercial Aircraft Tort Litigation: A Proposal for Absolute Liability of the Carriers, 23 STAN. L. REV. 569 (1971).

The article, a commentary on the problems encountered in applying the present tort system to domestic air crash litigation, proposes a system of absolute liability.

Horlick, The Developing Law of Air Hijacking, 12 HARV. INT'L. L.J. 33 (1971).

Expounding the weaknesses of the Tokyo Convention and the need for new procedures in extradition and punishment of hijackers, this work examines the current methods of preventing hijacking.

Smith, The Probable Necessity of an International Prison in Solving Aircraft Hijacking, 5 INT'L LAWYER 269 (1971).

The author argues that present international agreements are inadequate to meet the crisis of air hijacking. An alternative approach proposes the creation of an international prison located in a particular nation. The author also drafts a model treaty establishing such a prison and a tribunal for the trial of accused hijackers.
