With this issue the Journal completes its first ten years of publication. All subscribers have received a copy of the ten-volume index which it is hoped will be a valuable research aid. Those subscribers who may wish to gain full benefit from the index by completing a ten volume set are referred to the list of available issues in the front of this issue. Volume XI will introduce a larger-size format consistent with the growth of the Journal over the past ten years.

The new school term finds two new additions to the Law Faculty, both serving as Visiting Assistant Professors of Law. Mr. Alan R. Bromberg comes to S.M.U. following practice as an associate with the Dallas firm of Carrington, Gowan, Johnson, Bromberg & Leeds. He received his B.A. degree from Harvard, and is a graduate of Yale Law School. His specialties are Federal Taxation and Corporations.

Mr. James W. H. Stewart received his undergraduate degree from the University of Alabama, his LL.B. from Washington and Lee, and LL.M. from Harvard. Following graduation he taught in the Washington and Lee Law School, then served as Law Clerk for Mr. Justice Black of the United States Supreme Court. He has just completed a year of research on a Fulbright Grant in England during which time he also studied law at the London School of Economics and Political Science. He will be teaching the courses in Federal Courts and Administrative Law, among others.

Mr. Gordon Carpenter, Executive Director of the Southwestern Legal Foundation, announces three programs of interest in the near future. An Institute on Personal Injury Litigation is scheduled for December 5, 6, and 7. From January 3 through February 1, 1957, a special short course on Oil and Gas will be offered, and the Eighth Annual Institute on the Law of Oil and Gas and Taxation will be held January 30 through February 1. The latter institute will be included in the short course on Oil and Gas. These programs are presented by the Southwestern Legal Foundation in cooperation with Southern Methodist University School of Law.
