The Section of Individual Rights and Responsibilities

invites your participation in this rapidly growing, action oriented section. Among the Section's past accomplishments are ABA approval of resolutions supporting earned immunity, prohibiting sex discrimination in relation to housing or credit, broadening the Freedom of Information Act and legalizing the use of marijuana. Upcoming projects include reports on national health insurance, arrests of U.S. citizens abroad for drug offenses, the use and abuse of data banks in law enforcement and compensation in public interest litigation. These are only a few areas of the Section's current activities.

The Section welcomes the involvement of members in its various committees and recognizes that the success of the Section is based on the contributions of its members. As a member of the Section you will receive the Newsletter and Human Rights, and be able to participate in all of its activities.

You may join the Section of Individual Rights and Responsibilities by completing and mailing your application together with Section dues of $10.00 ($3.00 for Law Students).

NOTE: ABA Membership is a prerequisite for Section membership.
