The Section of International and Comparative Law, which was organized in 1933 under the leadership of the late Dean John H. Wigmore, is divided into four divisions—international law, comparative law, international trade and investment, and international organizations—and forty-eight committees. Committee work affords a challenging opportunity for members to contribute to Section activity and at the same time receive the benefits which flow from such participation.

The Section usually meets twice a year—in the summer during the annual meeting of the Association and in the spring in Washington, D.C.

SECTION SETS MARCH INSTITUTE ON BUSINESS LAW IN EUROPE

"Current Legal Aspects of Doing Business in Europe" is the title of a National Institute for lawyers to take place March 26 and 27, 1971 at Chicago's Sheraton-Chicago Hotel. The American Bar Association's Section of International and Comparative Law spearheads the arrangements.

The program will focus on current legal problems and developments concerning business in Western Europe, particularly in the European Common Market. The impact of the possible addition of new member nations will be examined.

Speakers will emphasize practical problems of organizing and integrating European operations, the drafting of distribution contracts and know-how licenses, and special issues of joint ventures and acquisitions. A half day will be devoted to identifying trends in international antitrust enforcement by individual European nations, by the Common Market as a whole, and also by the U. S. government.

"The two-day session will be of particular value to corporate counsel advising the management of U. S. corporations trading and investing in Western Europe," according to the chairman of the Institute planning committee, James T. Haight, Los Angeles. Additional details and registration material may be obtained from the American Bar Association, Section of International and Comparative Law, 1155 East 60th Street, Chicago, Illinois 60637.
