International Organization Studies on the Responsibility of States for Economic Injuries to Aliens

GEORGE WINTHROP HAIGHT,* DEPARTMENTAL EDITOR

It may be of assistance to readers to have the following list of materials prepared by international organizations in recent years relating to the responsibility of States for injuries to the economic interests of foreign nationals. The list is not complete and will be supplemented from time to time as additional items are brought to the editor's attention. Those listed below, however, provide some recent materials of interest to lawyers concerned with this subject. Some items are also included which bear only indirectly on this area.
